Grasshoppers a Burden
Oil Needs Help
Queer Advice From Lawyers

By Arthur Brisbane

DR. LARRIMER, government entymologist, says grasshoppers, destroying crops in Northwestern and Central States, are expanding their ravages 50 miles a day by taking to their wings. There is little hope for grasshopper control this season.

This reminds you that proud man, dressed in a little brief authority, may some day find himself wiped out by a combination of plagues, insects destroying crops, rats and ground squirrels carrying disease, ants destroying everything in hot countries, rabbits and mosquitoes.

Proud man should devote to the task of protecting himself against such enemies some of the ingenuity that he devotes to poison gas and explosives for killing of other men.

Grasshoppers are not as foolish as men.

With martial law and State troops, Governor Murray in Oklahoma City shuts down 3106 oil wells, to put up the price of oil and prevent waste of national resources.

But Texas and other fields will pour out more oil. You cannot deal with the oil problem on any but a national scale, and our favorite fetish and bugaboo, the silly, antiquated Sherman act, prevents any real action.

The oil industry needs help. Standard Oil of California reports for the first six months of 1931 prove it.

The profit was only 43 cents as against $1.53 for the first six months of 1930.

Federal Judge R. J. Hopkins, all the way from Kansas, tells New York lawyers that they "should not defend criminals they know to be guilty."

Several New York lawyers, in their own language, "will get a laugh out of that."

A man accused of crime and guilty usually HAS MONEY. The man accused but innocent usually HAS NOTHING.

Does the judge from Kansas want the New York criminal lawyers to starve to death? Let him remember the young corporation lawyer who said, "The only favor a common man can do me is to get run over by the cars. Then I can make something defending the corporation against his damage suit."

Capt. Joseph Medill Patterson, first-class newspaper man, will insist on flying although as he himself said in a signed article a man should not fly after 50.

On Tuesday his big amphibian crashed with him at the controls just after the takeoff at Roosevelt Field, L. I., and turned upside down.

Patterson got out, cut on the head. Nothing worse happened because he had presence of mind in the crash and turned off the switch, avoiding what would have been a disastrous fire, with gasolene pouring everywhere. Two friends with him were unhurt.

Capt. Patterson then ordered out his second machine, a biplane, the amphibian being smashed beyond repair, took the controls and flew off to his house up the Hudson river.

The avearge man past 50 insisting on running such risks would be called vain.

But Patterson, who is "queer," likes danger. When he was a war correspondent in Belgium, he went far out on the battlefield where shells were exploding and enjoyed "being more frightened than I ever was before in my life."

When we entered the war he went in as a gunner and up to the front.

Governor Roosevelt of New York, horrified by an uninterrupted series of murders, denouncing the shooting of five children, in a bootleg quarrel, as a "damnable outrage," wants the United States government to control the sale of firearms.

Unfortunately those that bring in whiskey could also bring automatics and other "rods." Men able to smuggle in Chinese and thousands of casks of whiskey at one time could easily bring in a few thousand pistols. The price might be $25 instead of $5, but that would make little difference to the gangster.

And favorite gangster weapons, machine gun and sawed off shotgun, any man may carry under the Constitution, for they are not concealed weapons.

Police with riot guns and tear gas bombs were kept in and around the "Negro belt" in Chicago, but there are no more "red eviction riots." Evictions, turning Negroes out of their houses, have stopped for the time.

Some lily white gentlemen, not in the least "Red," would be annoyed if they were turned out of their houses.

Britain is worried by a serious drop in the value of the pound sterling.

The Bank of England and the Banque de France are said to be at odds, the French bank going so far as to demand the removal

AUTO INSURANCE RATES TO JUMP 10 PER CENT

Compulsory auto insurance rates for next year will average an increase of about 10 per cent, it was learned today. The increase this year was 6 per cent, but it is understood next year's boost will be greater. Merton L. Brown, insurance commissioner, said he was working on the new schedule and hoped to make the tentative rates public in September. He said he is going to create many new zones, increasing the number of eight to fifteen or twenty.

REAL ESTATE MAN NEAR DEATH

Bullets Fly in the Darkness as Broker Is Foiled in a "Kidnap" Plan

Earl T. Lord, 50, State st. real estate broker, engaged two policemen in a gun battle in the Framingham home of his estranged wife early today.

He wounded one, Patrolman Thomas J. Carpenter, and was shot twice by Patrolman Benjamin Morse.

Then he turned his gun on himself and fired three more shots.

The combined wounds, three in the abdomen and two in the shoulder, were expected to prove fatal.

Patrolman Carpenter was wounded in the lower neck, not seriously. He fired one shot after being hit. Five shots were fired by Patrolman Morse, and Lord also emptied his revolver.

At the time of his arrival, Lord fractured his left arm in forcing his way into the house through the double windows of the ground-floor living room, but the injury failed to stop him.

CHILD USED AS GUN SHIELD

New York, Aug. 6 (AP)—Tony Trobino, admitting that he was the intended target of the gangland bullets that killed one child and wounded four others in Harlem's Little Italy, told police today how he used the body of a little child as a human shield from the leaden spray. The admission was made to a detective.

Shortly thereafter Trobino was arraigned on a technical charge of robbery and ordered held without bail.

Trobino is said to have admitted that he was a member of a narcotic ring that recently had been split up by internal dissension and that the word had gone out that the faction of which Trobino was a follower was going to have trouble.

Trobino said he was sitting in an automobile when the gangsters started to fire from their automobile.

Feigning a wound, he crawled along the sidewalk to where little children were playing.

As the gangsters' car approached the spot to which he had crawled, he grabbed a little boy and held him up as a human shield. A spray of bullets burst forth, killing Michael Vengalli, wounding four other children, but harming neither himself nor the boy he held.

SALE OF 'WINE BRICK' HALTED

Sale of "wine bricks" was suspended in Boston today.

The local distributing company was ordered to vacate its office in a Tremont st. building, following complaints of other tenants that salesmen and would-be purchasers, jamming the corridors, caused disturbance.

Local federal authorities, in a huddle over possible action to stop distribution, were reported to have visited the office secretly.

A. W. Perry, owner of the Tremont street building occupied by thme wine brick distributors, notified the office force to vacate by 5 p. m.

The continuance of distribution was reported to hinge on advices from New York where federal authorities raided the brick headquarters and made three arrests.

The supply here was exhausted by demand this morning but at

GIRL SLAIN AND BODY STUFFED IN DITCH

Tragedy Discovered When Remains Float Out in New Bedford Pond

New Bedford, Aug. 6—The unidentified body of a girl about 28 years old—a victim of murder, according to the police—was found today floating in Turner's Pond, near Shawmut ave., which is popularly known as "Lovers' Lane."

The girl had two head wounds, a bruise on the right temple and a deep gash near the left eye.

There was no water in the lungs, and police said she was dead before her body entered the water.

She was slain in or near an automobile while resisting the advances of a suitor, the police believe.

The body had apparently been stuffed into a culvert, which passes under the road, and from which it floated out into the pond.

The victim wore a diamond ring and a wedding ring without inscription. She weighed about 120 pounds, was five feet two inches tall, and had brown eyes and bobbed chestnut hair.

END OF AUTO PARTY

Blood matted the hair on the left side, showing that the body had been in the water only a short time, as the blood was undissolved.

Auto tracks leading from the road to the water's edge dovetailed with the police theory that the young wife died battling the unwelcome attentions of a man at the end of an auto ride.

Her shoes, stockings and part of her underwear were missing. Her wrist watch was found by the roadside with the metal strap broken, indicating it had been torn off in a violent struggle.

The watch was still going and was 10 minutes fast. It is a white

gold Waltham, case No. 103-1157 and works No. 2232-1301.

Dist. Atty. Crossley has ordered an autopsy.

The wild barking of a dog early yesterday morning, reported to the police today, may establish the approximate time tof the crime.

Police said that the body could have been in the culvert all yesterday and last night, floating out into the pond today shortly before it was discovered.

The condition of the wounds plainly indicated that the girl was dead for some time before her body entered the water.

With the finding of the wrist watch, and beside it a dime, search was launched for other belongings in the grass and in the pond, which is being dragged.

The body was found shortly after eight o'clock this morning by Fred Hambly, 35, who lives on High Hill rd. in the same section, on the northwest side of the city.

It was floating face down about 50 feet from the culvert end. The culvert runs under "Lover's Lane" at that point and carries a small stream of water from a swamp on the west side of the road.

Hambly ran down the road until he saw Manuel Silva, an electric company lineman, to whom he reported his discovery. Silva, whose home is on Coolidge rd., South Dartmouth, telephoned police headquarters from the nearest house.

Inspector Walter Ormond rushed to the scene by automobile with Detectives John K. Doyle and Michael J. Deane and several uniformed patrolmen.

The body, clad in a white dress with blue and red figures, was brought ashore in a small boat and laid on the grass by the side of the road, where Medical Examiner Daniel P. O'Brien viewed it.

WRIST WATCH FOUND.

Dr. O'Brien refused to make any statement and reported to Dist.-Atty. Crossley.

Meanwhile a crowd had gathered and watched the removal of the body to Sherman's undertaking rooms, at 505 County st.

Hambly, who found the body, also found the wrist watch after the police arrived. It was at the swamp end of the culvert.

The place where the watch was found confirmed the police theory that the body was placed in the culvert, later dislodged and carried out into the light of day.

DEFENDED HER HONOR

Police inspectors said that there was every indication the girl was killed while fighting for her honor. The bruise on her temple was the size of a quarter. The gash on the other side of the head, between the left eye and ear, was deep, and the hair there was thoroughly matted with dried blood.

Mrs. Agnes Lee, who lives on Shawmut ave., or "Lovers Lane," about 200 feet distant from where the body was found, told of the wild barking of her watchdog, "Spike," early yesterday morning.

DOG WAS ACTING WILD

"The dog doesn't bark unless something is wrong," she said.

"I was awakened in the middle of the night—about 10 o'clock I should say it was—by his barking and when I went to the window he was running around the yard, greatly excited.

"I went out to him and after a long time he quieted down but I could not see anybody about."

She now believes, as do the police, that the dog's barking might have been caused by the girl's death shrieks or by actions of the slayer in returning to the scene to hide the body of his victim.

Swimmer Stricken in Norwood Pool

Stricken with a heart attack while swimming today in New pond Norwood, Harold R. Metzer, 30, of 103 Walters st., Roslindale, sank to his death before the eyes of two companions. They could not bring him to the surface and police later recovered the body with grappling irons.

Dr. John Hartwell pronounced death due to a heart attack.

In the line above the picture, we utilize apt alliteration's artful aid.

There are other alliterations that form in your fertile mind, such as:

Prohibition poisons politics.
Prohibition permits plunder.
Gangsters gather gold.
Beer, booze, bootlegging, banditry.

There is no end to the alliteration. But that is not what worries the little lady on the right, whose professional name is "Miss America's Prospects."

Thanks to old Prohibition, you will notice that we are missing America's prospects, about 100 per cent.

Blade of Grass in Lung Kills Boy

Chicago, Aug. 6 (AP)—A blade of grass killed two-year-old Farrell Lasky.

He placed it in his mouth while playing in a park ten days ago. His mother slapped him on the back and the grass passed into one of his lungs, causing an infection from which he died in a hospital.

108,846 Bathe at 'L' Street in Week

A total of 108,846 persons attended the new L st. bathhouse in South Boston during the period of July 26 to August 1, Park Commissioner William P. Long announced today. Of this number, 44,362 were men, 35,034 women and girls, and 29,450 boys.

SWEETLAND AND GIRL JAILED

Marie Lemieux, 21, and Louis Sweetland, 40, the latter a former Arlington tax collector, pleaded guilty in Suffolk Superior Court to 63 counts of forgery and larceny.

Sweetland was sent to State prison for four to seven years by Judge Harold P. Williams, and the girl was sent to the Sherborn reformatory for an indefinite period.

In an appeal to the court, in which she stated she was in court for the first time in her life, the girl asked leniency in the form of a definite and short jail sentence.

Judge Williams replied that both he and Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle were willing to be lenient, in view of the aid she gave the authorities since her arrest, and he believed the reformatory sentence best for her.

Police disclosed that Miss Lemieux kept a diary which graded her men friends as good, fair, bad and easy, and listed the name, address and telephone number of every male acquaintance.

MacDonald Visits Stimson's Retreat

London, Aug. 6 (AP)—A remote spot in the Scottish Highlands, called Rogart Parish, is the scene of renewal today of conversations between U. S. Secretary of State Stimson and Prime Minister MacDonald on the European situation with particular attention to Germany.

At the invitation of Mr. Stimson, who is holidaying at a hunting lodge, Mr. MacDonald and his daughter Ishbel left their retreat in the village of Lossiemouth and went to Rogart for two days.

Los Angeles to Fly Over City Monday

The Navy dirgible Los Angeles will fly over Boston Monday in honor of the convention of the Legion of Valor, which opens at the Hotel Statler Sunday and remains in session until Tuesday, Aug. 11.

The Legion is composed of United States army and navy veterans who have won decorations in service. There are more than 5000 in the country.

World's Oldest Cure for Most Modern of Accidents

Peiping, Aug. 6 (INS)—Injuries caused by the most modern of American motor trucks were treated by the most ancient of Chinese drugs, according to a statement made by the parents of a child hit by a vehicle of the United States Marine Corps, detailed here as the legation guard.

Tusks of the unicorn were ground into powder to render more effective the knitting of the youngster's injured shoulder. Tigers' bones were taken also, while special brown paper was needed on which to write prayers.

The child had originally been rushed to the Rockefeller Hospital, but the family took it back to Chinese doctors.

BOY IS LYNCHED; SHOT 32 TIMES

Haynesville, Ala., Aug. 6 (AP)—A 16-year-old Negro, accused of attempting to attack an 11-year-old white girl, was lynched by a band of men in the Sandy Ridge community south of here yesterday.

Sheriff W. E. Meadows said the body of the Negro, bearing 32 bullet wounds, was found tied to the trunk of a tree with a rope and dog chain.

The girl, the sheriff said he was informed, was accosted by the Negro as she was walking from her home to a store. He dragged her into a cornfield, but she fought him and escaped.

Girl Driver Upsets Car With Three in It

Providence, R. I., Aug. 6 (AP)—Three persons were injured when two cars collided here today, one over turning. Mrs. Elsie Leary of North Attleboro, her husband Thomas Leary, and W. A. Bartlett, also of North Attleboro, were the injured.

A car driven by Dorothy I. Campbell of Worcester, struck the Bartlett car in the rear and tipped it over.

STORMS DELAY LINDBERGHS

Aklavik, Northwest Territories, Aug. 6 (AP)—Men of the northland, white trader and Eskimo alike, were hosts to the flying Lindberghs today as rainy weather to the west and uncertainty over their next refueling point held the vacationers here at the mouth of the broad Mackenzie.

With clearing weather here after the overcast skies of yesterday, weather reports from Point Barrow, the next scheduled stop for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife on their flight to the Orient, told of rain and a storm area in that vicinity.

In addition, the Arctic ice pack encircling Point Barrow, 536 miles to the northwest, had prevented the Cutter Northland from arriving there with gas and oil supplies for the Lindbergh plane. The Northland was near the ice off Icy Cape, 150 miles beyond Barrow.

The path through central Alaska, striking the Yukon river and either stopping at Fairbanks, on the Tanana, or proceeding direct from here on the 900-mile flight to Nome, promised clearer weather but at the journey's end, Nome, it also was cloudy and raining last night.

Love Salvaged for Third Time

Taunton, Aug. 6—It takes more than two wrecks of the matrimonial bark to discourage Albert Frank and his former wife, Elsie Frances Rose Wilcox.

Records at the marriage license bureau here today revealed that the couple, divorced in 1925, are to be remarried. They were married here in 1923, and each had been freed from their former mates.

Arabs in Jerusalem to Strike Monday

Jerusalem, Aug. 6 (AP)—Dissatisfied with measures taken by the government for dealing with possible renewal of Hebrew-Arab communal disturbances, elements of the Arab population today called a general strike to begin Monday.

STOLEN BONDS IMPOUNDED BY COURT

Stolen bonds, valued at $10,000 and seized by Boston police, were ordered impounded by Judge Harold P. Williams of Suffolk Superior Court today after he was informed the bonds were part of $2,000,000 loot gathered in various parts of the country.

Atty. Edwin Thomas, representing the First National Bank of Chicago, requested the impounding, stating that a New York surety company had already seized a portion of the loot on a writ last July.

Herman Lehar of Warren st., Chelsea, in municipal court today, was found guilty of receiving the $10,000 bonds stolen in Chicago, and was sentenced to two years in the House of Correction. He appealed and was held in $10,000.

FREED OF LARCENY.

On a charge of larceny of the bonds, stolen from the Chicago First National Bank, May 21 last, Lehar was found not guilty.

Inspectors William Bonner, Joseph Murphy and Joseph Decker said they arrested Lehar after he had tried to dispose of the bonds to Pierce & Co., brokers, 45 State st.

They said the brokers recognized the securities as stolen and refused to buy them. They were for $1000 each, 6 per cent, 1931 issue of the Long Bell Lumber Company of Chicago.

NAMES ANOTHER MAN.

Lehar said he got them from a man named Malcolm Rodgers, but could furnish no further information concerning him.

Police said three other bonds for $1000 each, stolen the same date from the Boulevard Trust Company, Chicago, were believed to be in Boston and a search is being made for them.

GLOBE TRIP IN 6 DAYS—NEXT!

Aboard S. S. Bremen (at sea) Aug. 6—(AP)—Around the world by airplane in six days—such is the prediction of Bernt Balchen, who piloted Admiral Richard E. Byrd across the Atlantic and to the South Pole.

He said he believed it was possible to surpass the record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty with present heavier-than-air machines.

"With three pilots there is no reason why the globe shouldn't be circled in six days," he said. "In fact, two-pilots would be able to do it."

"The big development in aviation is in speed," he said. "Ten years will see great improvement in industry—speed is the word at present."

Navy Man Ordered to Support Family

Morton A. Fenwick, a navy ensign on duty at Brooklyn navy yard, was ordered to pay his Cambridge wife $30 a month today in East Cambridge court for support of herself, Venita, 10, and James 3.

The wife, Mrs. Lucille Fenwick of Myrtle ave., Cambridge, charged Fenwick failed to pay her on an old court order issued in Virginia. Before court, counsel for Mrs. Fenwick served the navy man notice of divorce proceedings.

50 Pickets Seized in Paterson Strike

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 6 (INS)—More than fifty silk strikers were arrested today following picketing disorders at the Colt Dye Works.

Among those captured, police said, was Morris Liss, 22, a leading Communist agitator. Liss, who had been arrested several days ago while picketing the Henry Doherty Silk Mill at Clifton, was freed on $500 bail.

CRYING WOMEN BEG FOR DOLE IN MALDEN

250 Families Affected by the Slash; Mothers Appeal to the Mayor

Their weekly doles slashed, two-score weeping women descended on Mayor William A. Hastings in Malden city hall today and pleaded for restoration of funds that have barely kept them from starvation.

Many were accompanied by their children.

The mayor heard them and said he would do whatever possible he could to aid them.

250 FAMILIES AFFECTED

The critical situation became known today when 250 of 300 families receiving city aid found their doles reduced in some cases by nearly one half.

The condition resulted from failure of the City Council to act on Mayor Hastings' $69,000 appropriation order for the welfare board.

The sum of $150,000 was provided for relief work in the annual budget and the statement of July 1 showed that the board already had epended $101,000, leaving only $49,000 for the net si months.

COUNCIL IN RECESS

To meet the situation, the mayor introduced his appropriation order, but the council recessed for the summer without acting upon it and in the meantime the new tax rate was announced, based upon a forecast expenditure that does not include it.

This week's total dole was cut from $3000 to $2000.

The mayor may call a special session of the council to act upon the appropriation, but he is undecided.

TOKIO-SEATTLE RACE LIKELY

Tokio, Aug. 6 (AP)—A non-stop race between two monoplanes from Tokio to Seattle, with a large cash award awaiting the winner, appeared as a possibility today with the arrival here by airplane and boat of four American aviators.

Hugh Herndon, Jr., and Clyde Pangborn, who abandoned a round-the-world race in quest of the record set by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, landed at Haneda Aerodrome at 4:50 a. m., Boston time, today from Khabarovsk, Siberia, where they hopped off yesterday at 3:58 p. m.

They announced they would attempt a non-stop flight to Seattle.

Don Moyle and C. A. Allen arrived on the M. S. Chichibu Maru from the United States and announced they were contemplating a non-stop flight to the Puget Sound metropolis in the monoplane City of Tacoma, now in a hangar at Tachikawa airdrome. Seattle has offered a $25,000 prize for the first pilot making the flight.

Pangborn and Herndon were detained for three hours today by Aviation Bureau officials, who questioned them regarding their radio set and a camera found in their plane.

Officials asserted that in the emergency landing application filed by the American embassy nothing was said concerning camera or radio.

It was said that, in view of the circumstances of the fliers' arrival, the Ministry of Communications had asked the police to keep a watch over them. One report reached the bureau that the fliers passed over the Hakodate fortified zone on Hokkaido island. The authorities took possession of the aviators' camera and may develop its plates to ascertain if any photographs were snapped there.

Karcis, Grid Star, Captures His Bandit

Karcis, now an amusement park policeman, was seated in an automobile when two men held up John Wilson, also an employe of the park, of the day's receipts, $3000. Karcis leaped from his car, returned the robber's fire, one of the robbers surrendering.

They Don't Die That Way in Alabama!

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 6 (AP)—Simplified arithmetic. Congressman La Guardia of New York wrote Governor Miller of Alabama inquiring:

"How much does Alabama receive in inheritance tax from the estates of persons dying in your state worth more than $25,000,000?"

Governor Miller replied:

"That kind does not die in Alabama."

BEACH SAND THEIR BED

MARY McCARTHY HELEN McCARTHY

Mary and Helen McCarthy left Hyde Park yesterday to take a swim at Carson Beach, and they did. But somehow they got lost and their parents told the police about it. While the search was on the girls slept on the beach through the night. Today they started to walk home and on the way a friendly motorman took them aboard and landed them at their home in Canterbury st. (Staff photo.) Story on Page 2

TWO LOST GIRLS SLEEP ON BEACH

After sleeping the night through on Carson Beach, South Boston, two little Hyde Park sisters wearily wended their way home, today, penniless and footsore.

Half-way between Hyde Park and the Forest Hills station, Mary McCarthy, 7, remembering faintly the trolley car that passed their home in Canterbury st., Hyde Park, tugged at her sister Helen's arm.

Together the youngsters held tehir hands high as a trolley approached them. It stopped. The motorman gazed at them.

"Mister, do you pass Canterbury st., where I live?" she asked. "We haven't any money."

They were taken aboard and dropped in front of their home.

The girls had been taken to the beach yesterday. They became lost and police were notified.

Although police sought them during the night, the sisters said they slept unmolested on the beach.

AMY FINISHES TOKIO FLIGHT

Tokio, Japan, Aug. 6 (AP)—Amy Johnson, British woman flier, landed at Tachikawa airdrome at 4:17 a. m. Boston time today, concluding a flight by easy stages from London, Eng. She was accompanied by C. S. Humphries, mechanic.

The British aviatrix, the first woman to fly from London to Tokio via Siberia, completed the flight in ten and a half days and beat by a few hours the eleven day light plane record between the two cities, made by Seiji Yoshihara, Japanese aviator.

Marine Corps Cut to a Total of 17,185

Washington, Aug. 6 (AP)—Curtailment of first enlistments ordered early in June to reduce the strength of the Marine Corps from 17,500 to 16,000 with an expected saving of $1,000,000 this year, has cut the enlisted strength thus far to 17,185.

Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, commandant, said today he expected the total would touch 16,000 by Dec. 1, when recruiting would be stepped up to maintain the force at that level.

He Was Only 'Being Funny,' But It Cost a Life

New York, Aug. 6 (INS)—A policeman was dying today because a man decided "it would be fun" to run up and down fire escapes on a tenement, peering into windows.

Residents of the building told police a burglar was trying to enter, and when Officer Ambrose Donnelly sought to question the man he was wounded under the heart.

Robert William Prangen, 34, an insurance underwriter, who shot the officer, was wounded by Donnelly. Prangen, police said, was merely "playing a prank." He didn't know why he shot the officer, he said.

SHINE BOYS BEAT RACKETEER

New York, Aug. 6 (AP)—The shoe-shining fraternity—youngsters you see in parks or near public buildings with one shoe-at-a-time boxes—have taken the racketeering situation into their own hands.

A shiny automobile and a dapper young man, Nicholas Zampini, better known as "Nigger Nick," drove up. Said Zampini to the shine boys—about 40 of them:

"Boys, I have now taken over the shoe-shine concession here and every boy must pay me 15 cents a day and I will protect you."

"Protection?" asked "Sorrow" Anduage, aged 12. "We don't pay for protection."

A policeman came on the scene, but it was too late. The boys fell upon "Nigger Nick," cracked his ribs, blackened his eyes and ripped his natty attire off his back.

FEDERAL PROBE IS SHIFTED TO BOSTON

Immigration Officials Believed Involved in Ring Bared by Arrests

A huge racketeering ring which has smuggled 100,000 aliens into this country in the last 10 years was under investigation here today following the arrest of 10 men in New York City.

The ring, believed to have built up a fortune by spiriting foreigners into this country or extorting from those already illegally here not only has agencies in New York and Boston, but in almost every principal seaport of the country.

DOAK STARTS PROBE

Secretary of Labor Doak, who launched the investigation in Washington several weeks ago, describes the ring as "the biggest thing of its kind ever unearthed."

The fact that the racketeers had access to official records of aliens illegally in the country led Secretary Doak to believe that a number of immigration officials are involved in the scheme.

One clerk in the immigration service and an Ellis Island employe were among the 10 arrested in New York yesterday.

He announced today confessions had been obtained from several of the men held in New York. He did not name any of the men who had confessed, but said some of the men were reputed to be wealthy.

During the roundup counterfeit money, dies and tools for counterfeiting were found, Doak said.

PREYED ON OTHERS.

The government contends that the ring of racketeers obtained from immigration files names of aliens illegally here. Then members of the alleged ring approached these aliens and threatened to turn them over for deportation, unless they paid a fee, which ranged from $100 up.

Another scheme was said to have been to tell the alien to leave the country and then re-enter with a bogus re-entry permit furnished by the racketeers.

FAMINE, DEATH MENACE CHINA

Hankow, China, Aug. 6 (AP)—Thousands of persons were reported dead, hundreds of thousands were homeless and famine and disease hovered over Central and North China today as the great Yangtse and Yellow rivers overflowed their banks, inundating vast areas.

The government's relief committee estimated 50,000,000 persons were, or soon would be, afflicted.

Sections of Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang, important Yangtse "tri-cities," with a combined population of 1,300,000, including 1200 foreigners, were under water.

Two hundred thousand refugees in Hankow sought safety at higher levels. Thirty thousand are living on railway embankments and elevated highways and in boats. It was feared disease and pestilence would strike heavily.

MELROSE GIRL HIT, ROBBED

Knocked unconscious by an unidentified assailant, Miss Eleanor Wingood, 24, of 159 Grove st., Melrose, was robbed of her handbag as she was walking on Grove st, near her home.

She was found on the street by a neighbor and did not recover consciousness for some time.

Miss Wingood told police that she was carrying a handbag containing $8.65 and some trinkets, and was walking toward her home about 9 o'clock when someone stepped from bushes on the street and struck her.

Theodore Dwyer of 66 Beach ave. was walking by a half hour later when he heard moans and investigated.

REDS BACKING RENT STRIKE

Chicago, Aug. 6 (AP)—The Chicago Tribune said today that a Communist plot to foment a rent strike among Chicago's Negro residents came to light while the authorities continued the investigation of the South Side riot in which three Negroes were killed.

The riot resulted from a demonstration in protest against the eviction of a Negro woman from a flat for non-payment of rent.

Reports that Communists had won thousands of Negro adherents in the rent strike, were made, the Tribune said, at a meeting of Negro clergy and business men. Members of the council of unemployed, a Communist organization, attempted to break up the meeting, but were repulsed by the ministers.

One minister said the Communists were enrolling Negroes on a promise hat if any members are evicted, a vigilance committee would replace their furniture.

TAR FIRE ROUTS TUNNEL CREW

Workmen were driven from a shaft opening in the Liverpol st., East Boston, side of the new $16,000,000 East Boston traffic tunnel today as a kettle of tar boiled over on the 75-foot level and caught fire, igniting wooden bulkheads in the shaft.

Three fire engines and two ladder companies came to put out the fire. Streets leading to the construction site were choked with automobile traffic and pedestrians attracted by the heavy smoke. The damage was slight.

WAAB Will Sign Off at 9 O'Clock Tonight

In order that the technical staff of WAAB may make adjustments on its new one-half wave vertical radiator, part of the transmitter equipment, the first of its kind in the world, Station WAAB will sign off at 9 o'clock tonight.

This will cancel the Boston Evening American Globe Trotter's news flashes at 10:30, but tomorrow morning he will open the station with early morning news at 7:45. The one-half wave vertical radiator is designed to eliminate noises and improve radio reception.

'I'LL LIVE TEN YEARS'—EDISON

West Orange, N. J., Aug. 6 (INS)—Thomas A. Edison, ill at his home here, today told his personal physician that he believed he would live for at least ten years more "provided I pass this present illness."

Edison, according to Dr. Hubert S. Howe, has a theory that when a man reaches the vicinity of 82—the inventor is 84—and is stricken with a serious illness and then recovers that he is likely to live at least ten years.

"My friend Rockefeller," Dr. Howe quoted Mr. Edison as saying, "seems to have passed these dangerous stages successfully. If he can do it, I can."

Dr. Howe declared that the aged inventor was not out of danger. He said that uremic poisoning might reach Mr. Edison's heart at any time and cause sudden death.

$819,982,850 in New Loans to Veterans

Washington, Aug. 6 (AP)—The Veterans' Bureau today informed President Hoover that 2,128,097 loans on adjusted service certificates had been made to July 31 totalling $819,982,850.21 under the recently enacted law permitting veterans to borrow up to 50 per cent of the face value of their certificates.

The total loans including government life insurance and previous loans on adjusted service certificates amount of $1,187,386,415.82.

BOY SWALLOWS COINS IN DIVE

A boy holding a dime and a nickel in his mouth for safe-keeping, dived into Black's Creek, Quincy today, swallowed the money and became so frightened he was thought to be drowning.

Carried ashore by a lifeguard stationed there, the boy, Fred Hallowell, 10, of 50 Wayland st., Wollaston, was given the prone method of resuscitation and taken to Quincy hospital.

There it was discovered he had suffered no harm, and was permitted to go home with the money safely in his stomach.

FOREST GUARDS HUNT FIREBUGS

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 6 (AP)—Two hundred fires, many reported to be incendiary, caused damage to spread today in northwestern forests. The losses already total $1,000,000.

The figure includes the value of 25 to 30 burned homes and hundreds of head of livestock.

The fires have claimed two lives and injured six men.

Secret agents of the Federal Forest Service were in the danger zones hunting persons they believe have been firing bone-dry timber areas at widely scattered points.

The Priest River valley fire is estimated to have burned over 30,000 to 40,000 acres.

The Deer Creek fire in the Kootenai forest was being guarded by a reinforced crew of 1169 men.

WOMAN MAKES FIRE RESCUE

A woman was overcome and rescued, a fireman was injured and eight families forced to flee when flames swept the rear of a three story wooden apartment block at 16-18-20 Coggswell ave., North Cambridge, today.

Mrs. Mary F. Campbell collapsed from smoke inhalation in a hallway and was rescued by Mrs. Aileen Kelsey, a neighbor.

The fire caused damage of $5000. Its origin was undetermined.

Mrs. Fred Walsh was partially overcome by smoke. Among those who escaped were Mr. and Mrs. Levi Hurlburt, Mrs. Mabel Nile and her daughter, Ruth, 18, who telephoned the alarm.

2 FIREMEN ARE HURT AT BLAZE

One fireman was burned and another was cut by glass during a fire in a dust blower at the Walworth Manufacturing Co., First and L sts., South Boston, today.

The victims were Frank Haggerty, who was burned on the face and hands, and John Rouke. Both are members of Ladder 19.

They were given first aid treatment by Miss Agnes Batts, the plant nurse, and then removed to Carney Hospital.

U.S. Hotels Do Billion Business a Year

Washington, Aug. 6 (AP)—American hotels do a business of more than one billion dollars annually. Figures announced today by the census bureau placed the 1929 receipts of 15,577 hotels as $1,039,363,000. Those operating throughout the year reported receipts of $962,801,000; resort hotels, $76,562,000.

Year round hotels had a total of 1,134,937 guest rooms and a dining room capacity of 610,762. Resort hotels had 156,939 guest rooms and dining capacity of 27[illegible]371.

N. H. CATHOLIC CHURCH HEAD DIES AT 62

Rt. Rev. Albert G. Guertin to Be Buried in the State He Long Served

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 6—The Rev. Albert G. Guertin, bishop of the Catholic archdiocese of New Hampshire, died this morning at Dr. Allen's clinic, Morristown, N. J., after an illness of a few months.

Bishop Guertin died of a diabetic condition after having been a patient at the clinic two weeks. Mgr. Jeremiah T. Buckley of Concord was with him at the end.

Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, at his summer home in Marblehead, said of Bishop Guertin:

"I held Bishop Guertin in high esteem. He was a dear friend, a very honorable, just and pious man. He was an excellent bishop and a good citizen. My relations with Bishop Guertin were always most cordial and I was most happy to have him as one of the bishops of the province of New England.

"He would always co-operate in anything that served the moral and civil welfare of the province"

BORN IN NASHUA

Bishop Guertin was born in Nashua February 17, 1869, and was educated in the parochial schools of that city, St. Charles' College, Sherbrooke, P. Q., and St. Hyacinthe's College.

He studied for the priesthood at St. John's Seminary, Brighton, Mass., and was ordained December 17, 1892, by Bishop Bradley at Nashua.

He first served in Manchester, and then in Lebanon for three years, returning to Manchester, where on Feb. 12, 1907 he was made bishop, being consecrated on March 19 of that year.

FUNERAL IN N. H.

Bishop Guertin leaves a brother, John B. A. Guertin of Manchester, and a married sister in Nashua.

The body will be sent from Morristown tonight but no definite arrangements have been made for the funeral.

The first native of New Hampshire to be elevated to the episcopacy, Bishop Guertin earned a reputation as an executive of unusual ability.

St. Joseph's grammar school and girls' high school were built under his administration, and he recently purchased a tract of land for a new boys' high school.

Church bells were tolled in Manchester when news of his death was received here. The last rites of the church were administered to him on Sunday.

LYNN UNIONS TO ACT ON STRIKE

Leaders of Lynn shoe workers' unions today prepared for a series of meetings in which each individual union will act on the strike of about 275 cutters, members of the National Shoe Cutters' Association, who struck to obtain increases in wages.

Meetings will be held beginning tonight by the heel workers. Saturday night the lasters' independent unit, not affiliated with the National Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, will meet. Units of the latter organization will hold meetings next week.

Officials said that while the primary object is to protect members in the present situation, the question of joining in a general strike undoubtedly would be brought up.

BULLET VICTIM DIES IN MAINE MYSTERY

Lewiston, Me., Aug. 6—George E. Fahey, 42, died in a hospital today of a bullet wound in the abdomen which he described as "accidental."

Fahey, was taken to a physician early yesterday by his brother, John Fahey, of Massachusetts, and refused to tell police anything about the shooting.

John Fahey had left the physician's office without telling him his brother had been shot. He was sought by police today for questioning.

No information was obtained concerning his whereabouts until he was taken to the physician.

Surgeons who removed the 25-caliber pistol bullet set the time of the shooting at before 3 a. m. yesterday. Police believed it occurred some distance from here. There was no bullet mark on Fahey's shirt, which was considered as indicating he had not fired the shot.

LABOR DEBATES STATE FUND

New Bedford, Aug. 5 (AP)—Plans of the Massachusetts Federatino of Labor to adjourn the annual convention today were disrupted when the entire session was occupied with a discussion of minority rights of members.

The question arose when a resolution favoring a bill which was defeated in the Legislature last year and which would establish a state fund to compensate employes injured in industrial accidents and enable employers to insure their own risks came up for action. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 133 to 3.

Morgan T. Ryan, registrar of motor vehicles, addressed the convention as a representative of Governor Joseph B. Ely. Ryan spoke of the benefits of the "stagger" system in industry to provide work for all employes.

WHALES SEEN OFF CAPE ANN IN BIG SCHOOL

Thar she blows!

A school of whales, the two leaders at least 90 feet each in length, today were reported spouting and diving eight miles off Cape Ann.

Robert E. Barrett, water power corporation president of Holyoke, and a party of half a dozen men sighted the monsters of the deep from the deck of Barrett's 50-foot auxiliary schooner Tertia, en route to Gloucester harbor.

It was the first school of big whales sighted in New England waters in years.

First seen two miles away and then observed at the close range of an eighth of a mile, the whales were spouting with such gusto that the whirlpool from their arched diving and heavy spouting reached the sides of the Tertia.

The two big leaders of the school were watched by those aboard the schooner and beneath the whirlpool could be seen black backs of other whales.

R. F. Shea, secretary to the mayor of Holyoke; R. M. Hudson and J. J. Babb of the New England Council headquarters here and others were members of the schooner party.

OUST NURSE IN HOSPITAL FIRE

Westboro, Aug. 6—Investigation of a fire which wrecked a nurses' cottage at the Westboro State Hospital here late yesterday resulted today in the dismissal of a nurse, in whose room the blaze started, for smoking.

Dr. James Lang, superintendent of the hospital, said:

"The young lady lost her position and most of her personal effects through violating one of our most stringent rules. I think she has been punished enough.

"She admitted to me that she smoked a cigarette, threw it in a wastebasket and left the room.

"We have a strict rule against our nurses smoking, but, of course, it often is violated. I felt that it was time to make an example of a culprit."

The fire originated on the third floor of the cottage, and quickly burst through the roof. Firemen had difficulty in confining the flames to the one building. The cottage was damaged to the extent of $4,000.

LIGHTSHIP ON A MAINE REEF

York Harbor, Me., Aug. 6 (AP)—The United States lighthouse ship Shrub went aground on Bridge's Rock, one-quarter of a mile off shore here today and was believed to be sinking.

The ship was engaged in picking up and replacing buoys when it struck the reef, ripping a hole in its bottom and flooding the engines.

The crew were endeavoring to hold her on the rocks to prevent her sinking, but as the engines were out of commission had a difficult task. The Navy yard at Portsmouth, N. H., was asked to send tugs and in the meantime a few fishing boats stood by to aid in taking off the crew, if necessary.

HIGHER RATES ON AUTOS FOR INSURANCE

Marked increases in certain zones will feature the 1932 compulsory auto insurance rate schedule, it was reported at the State House today.

At the same time additions to the number of zones said to be contemplated are expected to bring about reductions in some communities where rates are now high.

Merton L. Brown, commissioner of insurance, is at work on the new schedule, which under the law must be promulgated early in September.

The schedule is based on the experience of the previous year, with higher rates put into effect in communities where more accidents occur in proportion to the number of cars.

After the rates are promulgated the public will be given an opportunity to express their views at a hearing conducted by the insurances commissioner.

It was impossible today to obtain figures as to the amount of the increases expected, but it was understood they would be substantial in some instances.

HEAT KILLS 2; TOPS RECORD

nearby Massachusetts in the record-breaking torridity, one was in critical condition in a hospital and there were many prostrations.

In Lunenberg, Gustave Wiljanen, Townsend Harbor farmer, was stricken at the wheel of his car. His daughter, Mary, riding with him, rushed him to the Burbank Hospital in Fitchburg. He was dead upon arrival.

WOMAN DROPS DEAD

Mrs. John T. Mahoney of Roxbury dropped dead at her summer home after complaining of the heat.

Edward Sullivan, 24, of Cowperwaithe st., Cambridge, collapsed on the sidewalk at Tremont and Bromfield sts., and was taken to Haymarket Relief Station. His name was placed on the danger list.

NO RELIEF LIKELY

No relief was in sight for today or tonight. The weather man said that showers promised for tonight would not arrive to cool the city until late tomorrow. Dying winds sidetracked the storm enroute from the lake region.

The upward surge of the temperature began with a jump of six degrees between 9 and 9:45 a. m. Yesterday's maximum figure of 90 was passed shortly after 11 o'clock.

The officers of the state treasurer, the secretary of state and several other departments in the State House were ordered closed at 1 o'clock because of the oppressive heat.

YOUTH DROWNED

One death was reported yesterday, an indirect result of the heat, while three others were prostrated in the Greater Boston area.

Fall River Man Held in Slaying

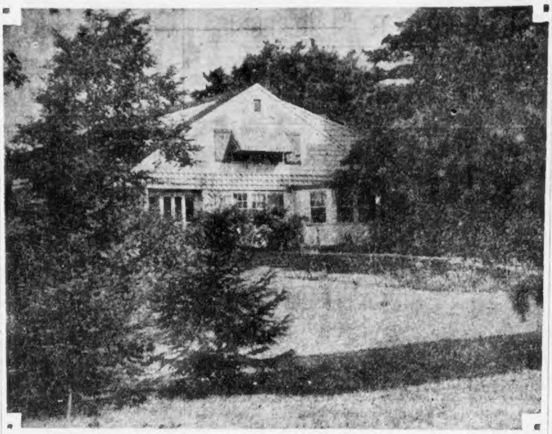
Fall River, Aug. 6 (AP)—Peter L. Vaillancourt, 43, was held for the grand jury today for the slaying of Marie Anne Gauthier, 44, on June 16.

The government placed in evidence a pair of shoes found in the flat in which the woman was slain and which, it claims, were Vaillancourt's. Vaillancourt's own admission placed him at the house at the time of the woman's death it was testified.

Wheat Asked for China

Mayor Curley has forwarded to the Massachusetts congressional delegation an appeal to sponsor a special act to permit the United States to lend its surplus wheat to China to aid farmers here and relieve the famine in the far east.

VICTIM AND SCENE OF GUN BATTLE



Home of Mrs. Earl T. Lord, Edgehill rd., Framingham, where her estranged husband, a State st. real estate broker, engaged in a pistol duel today with two policemen. He shot one of the officers and then turned a revolver on himself. He is reported near death. Lord went to the home of his wife to "kidnap" his children, according to police. The shooting occurred when the officers, called by phone, entered the house.

SECRET BAN ON WINE BRICKS

noon a truck load of wine bricks arrived in Charlestown from New York.

Following complaints about congestion in the corridors of the building and a litter of cigarette stubs and matches left by applicants for sales jobs, owners of the building notified Atty. Howard Butler, who had sublet the office, that it should be vacated.

U. S. CHIEFS WON'T TALK

Butler notified the tenants, and the distributors began a search for new quarters.

Maj. Goodenough, local prohibition enforcement agent, refused to state what action, if any, he planned.

"We are not advertising in advance what course we shall take," he said.

"We don't know if this is a harmless compound or not until we procure and analyze the product.

"It is possible these bricks produce no more alcoholic beverage than did a concentrated beer extract advertised extensively two years ago. But we do not know."

TARR IS UNDECIDED

U. S. Atty. Tarr, at his Rockport home, said:

"I don't care to make any statement about the matter at this time. There will be no action until it is given due consideration."

Asst. U. S. Atty. Walsh went into conference with Maj. Goodenough, and it was indicated that instructions were awaited from Washington.

New York federal officials apparently moved on their own responsibility for a test of the legality of sale of the bricks. The three men arrested there were arraigned on charges of violating Section 18 of the prohibition law, a section seldom invoked. Federal court in California already has upheld the legality of the brick distribution.

Promotors of the bricks agree that they might ferment and turn to wine in solution if allowed to stand, but point out that this warning is placed on the wrapper of every brick and this warning is also given to each purchaser.

Salesmen stated that while they may have told the purchasers about the manner in which wine could be produced, they made plain to the customer on every sale that the product should be consumed at once and also recommended the use of a preservative to prevent alcoholic fermentation.

CRAMER FLIES OVER ICE CAP

Cleveland, Aug. 6 (AP)—Officials of Trans-American Air Lines Corporation today confirmed reports of the charting of a new transatlantic air mail route, in the course of which Parker D. ("Shorty") Cramer landed his Diesel powered Bellanca monoplane yesterday at Amgmagsalik, Greenland, after crossing the Greenland ice cap.

Cramer left Detroit July 27, refueled at Cochrane, Ont., and arrived on August 2 at Wakeham Bay, in Hudson Strait, continuing from there to Greenland.

With Cramer is a Canadian radio operator, Louis Paquette, who has been in communication with radio stations in Hudson strait.

Cramer is understood to have deposited $1000 with the Danish government for relief of his expedition in case of emergency and obtained permission to land in Greenland. A supply of gasoline recently was cached at Angmagsalik for his use.

He will hop off for Reykjavik, Iceland, today and fly to Bergen, Norway, via the Faroe Islands tomorrow. Preparations are being made to receive him Sunday in Copenhagen.

Boy Violin Wonder's Guardians Named

San Francisco, Aug. 6 (US)—On the eve of the departure of Grisha Goluboff, nine-year-old violin prodigy for New York, where he will appear in a series of recitals, Mr. and Mrs. Max Holcombe, his parents, were named his legal guardians.

Lord, who has been living apart from his family for about a year, often occupying rooms at a Framingham hotel, appeared at the Edgehill rd. house two hours after midnight, brandishing a revolver and incoherent in his speech, according to police. They say he had been drinking.

OFFICER IS SHOT

He demanded admittance to the house and when members of his family refused to open the front door he broke a window with the revolver and climbed in.

He told his wife, Mrs. Emily Lord, according to the police, that he was going to take the children from her and shoot himself.

The children were awakened by his shouts and one of them, a daughter, telephoned the police. Patrolmen Carpenter and Morse were rushed to the home in a police car.

The house was in almost total darkness. As they entered through the front door, which had been opened by Mrs. Lord, a gun flashed in the darkness from the living room and Carpenter fell with a bullet in his neck. He fired once as he dropped.

TURNS GUN ON SELF

There was another flash in the darkness and a bullet whistled past Morse's head. Morse emptied his gun and heard Lord's moans.

As he ran into the living room, Lord, lying on the floor, placed the gun against his abdomen and pulled the trigger three times.

He was taken to Framingham Hospital, where surgeons expressed no hope for his recovery.

Charges of assault with intent to murder both Carpenter and Morse were made against him by Capt. Charles F. Barnacle, acting chief of the Framingham department.

At Lord's State st. office there is a posted notice that he is on vacation and may be reached at Framingham.

According to occupants of the building he recently had shown signs of despondency and claimed to have lost heavily in the real estate market.

ARRESTED WITH GIRL

While he lived on West Cedar st. and before his arrest, on May 11, he staged many parties that resulted in complaints from other occupants of the house, according to John Sinnott, the janitor.

He was arrested by Sergt. Mark J. Leonard and Special Officer Enos Nickerson on a charge involving a young woman who gave her name as Mary Smith. Lord identified himself as "Frank Jones" and both he and the woman said they lived in Uxbridge.

He was in court May 21 and was fined $10, which he paid. The woman defaulted.

In their search for her police went again to the West Cedar st. house and there learned "Jones'" true identity, which is carried in the records of Station 3.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

HEIRESS NURSE DIES A MARTYR TO PROFESSION

Miss Anne Black, 21, who spurned fortune and society life for a career as a nurse, died in City Hospital early today, a martyr to her profession.

The girl, who gave up everything that most girls long for to devote her life to caring for the sick, became infected while attending a patient and succumbed after only a week's illness.

She was the daughter of the late Henderson Black, president of the Canadian Pottery Works, of Montreal, but she closely guarded her family connections until yesterday when it was revealed she had no chance to recover.

Her family was notified and when the end came shortly after 3 a. m. today, her mother, an older brother, Herbert J. Black, of Sherbrooke, Que., and two sisters, Mrs. Herbert Turner and Mrs. Frank J. Hamby, both of Montreal, were grouped around her bedside.

Her fatal illness resulted from an infection contracted while nursing a woman infected with streptococci, physicians said.

The woman succumbed and a few days later Miss Black showed symptoms of the same dread infection. On July 28 she was admitted as a patient at the City Hospital, where she had been acting as student nurse.

Yesterday physicians gave up all hope for her recovery. Her family had hardly reached her bedside when she passed away.

According to the girl's family, she possessed a fortune in her own right after the death of her wealthy father four years ago.

Miss Black became interested in nursing after her sisters served as nurses during the World War. Despite the pleas of her family and friends she arranged to come to Boston to study nursing at the City Hospital.

She was modest and unassuming and made no reference to the life she had left behind her. She made a host of friends.

Rose Hobart Will Play Opposite March in His "Jekyll-Hyde" Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Aug. 6—There is more borrowing and lending of stars in Hollywood right now than at any time in years. Studios where production is slack are only too happy to lend their high-priced stars. Rose Hobart, who has been groomed, developed and put over by Universal, moves to Paramount next week to play opposite Frederic March in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Carl Laemmle, Jr., would never let her leave Universal if fall productions were on.

Louella O. Parsons

Maureen O'Sullivan is another young actress who is leaving the home lot. She has been borrowed from Fox for Eddie Quillan's leading lady in "Auto Camp" at RKO-Pathe. Little O'Sullivan has never before made a picture away from the home studio. She will have Ralph Murphy, erstwhile dialogue writer, for her director.

They tell me that Freddie March looks handsomer than ever minus the mustache. He and Florence Eldredge are back in Hollywood again.

Hollywood will never so much as look at Tallulah Bankhead until December. She is visiting Hope Williams in Wyoming, and the two girls are "packing in" for a week's outing in the mountains. Then it is New York for Tallulah and Hollywood for Hope. Miss Williams comes here to play in "Penthouse," Radio's big number for her. A society girl who crashed the New York stage in "Holiday." Miss Williams is one of the most interesting young women on the stage. The screen—well, we'll have to find out. She hasn't yet had a chance. Joel McCrea is her leading man and Laurence Olivier has been signed for an important role. Mr. Olivier is set for stardom—like Ronald Colman someone said—with some reservations we hope.

The three Marx Brothers, count them, descended upon Carmel Myers with one fell swoop and kissed and embraced her. You would have thought that would have been enough for any woman, but after Carmel emerged from the onslaught with her Empress Eugenie hat over one ear, her pocketbook on the floor and her rouge smeared all over her face, she said, "and where is Zeppo?" Chico and Harpo are leaving for New York and the salutation was their farewell. As soon as Carmel got her breath she managed to say that she is going to have a role in "Pleasure," a picture now being made at Tec Arts Studio with Otto Brower directing. Wonder what all the girls will do when Harpo goes back to New York? He's Hollywood's current sheik.

Will someone please tell me why Paramount paid Robert E. Sherwood real money for "This Is New York" only to change the title to "Two Kinds of Women?" I don't expect to live long enough to see the day when any producer will consider a stage title worth keeping even when he pays for the play's reputation. I suppose Miriam Hopkins is the good kind and Wynne Gibson, the reverse, since both girls have a part with Phil Holmes playing opposite them and Stuart Walker directing.

Seen and Heard: Jack Gilbert and Marjorie King doing a Marathon along the beach. Jack's last picture, "West of Broadway," from an inside source, is said to be a humdinger. The Harold Lloyds are now living at Santa Monica and Harold says his son and heir is getting positively portly at 16 pounds. Gloria is getting new teeth, and all the Lloyd youngsters, Gloria, Peggy and Junior, are as brown as berries from the sun. Harold, meanwhile, is improving the shining hours by reading stories. So far he has six favorites. Edmund Loew and Warner Baxter are none too pleased at the prospects of a week in Arizona. The exteriors of "Cisco Kid" are being made there—and the temperature is 113 and up.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: ETHEL BARRYMORE in a red chiffon frock, greeting old friends at her brother LIONEL'S home following the opening of her play. MRS. RICHARD BARTHELMESS in white satin empire frock, much admired. MRS. LIONEL BARRYMORE and LILYAN TASHMAN in flowered chiffon. ZOE AKINS who wrote "Declassee" for MISS BARRYMORE, the center of an animated group. JOBYNA HOWLAND entertaining her brother, a well known comedian. INA CLAIRE in green chiffon and orchids, looking too beautiful to make the other women happy. RICHARD BARTHELMESS, ALICE GLAZER, the HERMAN MANKIEWICZES and HERMAN'S pa and ma, also EDMUND LOWE among the guests at the BARRYMORES' party. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Edith Griffith Hit at Scollay

Edith Griffith, called "vaudeville's newest discovery," is doing much to live up to her title of unusual songstress this week at the Scollay.

The reception the audiences give her substantiates the confidence which Manager E. A. Vinson has in this charming lady's ability. Vinson "discovered her in a New York cafe last week, and upon hearing her sing, immediately signed her for a week at the Scollay.

STARS OF NEW FILM OFFERINGS ON BOSTON SCREENS

Painting Exhibition to Continue at Fine Arts

The Fine Arts Theater announces that the exhibition of paintings by Arthur C. Goodwin will continue during next week. This exhibition has aroused considerable interest. Through the courtesy of Francis H. Bigelow, art collector, the exhibition is extended.

Bowdoin Square

Beginning today the Bowdoin Square offers an entire change of bill, both in pictures and seven vaudeville acts. One of the top films is "Annabell's Affairs." The companion picture is "Ex-Bad Boy." The Six Hollywood Girls and six other acts will be seen. Tomorrow night extra vaudeville is featured in what is termed "Bargain Night."

Gayety Theater

Girls Seeking Hollywood Fame Are Given Advice by Belle Bennett

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

What is love? Is it possible to be happy though married—in Hollywood? Can a girl get ahead in the movies with body and soul clean when she finally wins stardom? These, and other questions, we fired at Belle Bennett. In her earnest, simple way she answered them all.

* * *

Miss Bennett arrives in Hollywood today, her vaudeville tour having been suddenly halted by a telegram received in Boston engaging her for a picture which RKO-Pathe puts into production next Saturday. By the terms of her stage contract she could cancel her tour in such a case. Miss Bennett has been in show business since she was a baby. She knows its ins and outs, its high spots and its lesser lights. She speaks frankly, sincerely. She warms to her topic. Her lips move fervently. But it is hard to keep one's attention away from her eyes, the most glorious eyes we have ever seen in woman. We asked about her husband.

Fred Windemere

He is Fred Windemere, a veteran director of motion pictures. We asked if he were ever greeted as Mr. Bennett.

"Often," said the actress, laughing. "But he doesnt mind one whit. He's the dearest, most devoted lover.

"Love," she said, "meaning the kind that is worth while and lasts, is a mutual thing. If it be of the flesh, it will die in time. It must be of the soul.

"The girl who starts out with the idea that she is going to use her charms to gain the good graces of this or that executive is lost in the shuffle. So many cases come to mind which prove this. The truth is, the girl is taken at her own appraisal of herself. Those who last are the ones who surrender to no man except in true love, who refuse to go in for dissipation.

"Ambition, liking for work, and firm purpose to live right and think right, are the best recipe for enduring screen success."

HEARST HAS HIT THE MARK, SAYS YOUNGMAN

Favorable comment on the editorial of William Randolph Hearst calling upon President Hoover, the governors and mayors to take immediate action to wipe out the racketeering and carnival of gang murders afflicting portions of the country continues.

Lieut.-Gov. William S. Youngman believes Mr. Hearst has done a valuable work in concentrating public attention on existing conditions. He says:

"I am inclined to believe the government needs vigilance committees, people who are not in governmental positions, to assist it in finding evidence, but not to take the law out of the hands of the government. The government needs people not governmental officials to assist, as they have recently in Chicago.

"I can't agree with all the suggestions in the editorial, because personally I do not see how martial law for racketeers can be invoked in this situation so that there can be trial by court-martial. Still I think Mr. Hearst has done a valuable thing in concentrating public attention on the condition."

President Joseph McGrath of the Boston City Council:

"With the sincerity and aggressiveness that has distinguished his every act in public life, William Randolph Hearst, most powerful of America's newspaper publishers, now urges that the United States government take measures to curb the crime wave which, during the past decade, has grown to such proportions that innocent children are now the victims of death dealing weapons in the hands of criminals.

"The recent outrage in New York, where a group of happy, carefree youngsters were suddenly mowed down by gangsters who were, in all probability drug addicts, has no parallel in the history of crime in this nation.

'OLICE POWERLESS

"The police of New York and of every other large city in this country are nearly powerless against men of this type and, in my opinion and as pointed out by Mr. Hearst in his editorial in the Boston Advertiser of last Sunday, the task now belongs to the Federal authorities.

"Prohibition and drugs are responsible for conditions as they now exist. The narcotic evil has been the subject of thousands of editorials in the Hearst newspapers during the past quarter century. Just when it seemed that the Hearst newspapers were succeeding in checking the flow of drugs into this country prohibition came. The bars were let down. Reports of corruption among public officials in all sections of the nation were frequent. Today we see the result—children in a crowded tenement section shot down by blood thirsty gangsters who have no respect for the lives, safety or property of others.

"Mr. Hearst is the pioneer in what, I hope, will be the most successful drive against criminals ever staged in the history of the world.

P TO HOOVER NOW

"His editorial should be carefully studied by President Hoover, officials of the Department of Justice, and the other federal law enforcement agencies.

"This man who was expelled from France because he dared expose a secret treaty that might one day place America is jeopardy has no selfish motive in demanding that the Washington authorities take steps to protect innocent children from the lawless element of the nation.

"He speaks, through his editorial in the Boston Sunday Advertiser, as an American citizen who has the best interests of all of the people at heart. His newspapers have been a power for good for more than a quarter of a century and I trust that they will be as successful in their campaign against crime as they were in preventing the wholesale destruction of the American merchant marine after the World War and as they were in the fight against greedy coal barons ten years ago."

City Councilor Richard D. Gleason of Roxbury:

"William Randolph Hearst has again come forward, like the patriotic citizen that he is, and suggested a new policy that, if accepted by President Hoover, will do much to curb the activities of criminals in the great cities of America.

"His suggestion that the federal government step in and take control of the situation is a very good one and is another indication of the interest he has always taken in the welfare of his fellow citizens.

LAUDS HEARST EDITORIAL

"My only fear is that, like many other good suggestions which have been advanced by Mr. Hearst and other prominent Americans, the government officials may not have vision enough to see their worth and to put them into operation.

"Mr. Hearst is to be commended for this suggestion. He stands forth again as the great American whose first love is his native land and its people.

"His editorial in last Sunday's Boston Advertiser should be printed in pamphlet form and distributed among law abiding citizens everywhere."

Former Fire Commr. Theodore A. Glynn:

"I am in agreement with Mr. Hearst when he urges that the federal authorities take some steps to curb crime conditions in the several states.

MASTERLY EDITORIAL

"His recent editorial in the Boston Sunday Advertiser is a masterly affair and one that merits the careful consideration of the Washington officials. Every citizen should read it.

"I trust that it will not be long before the newspapers of the nation announce that President Hoover has adopted the suggestion."

CRIME SERIOUS PROBLEM

Stanton R. White, director of public celebrations:

"I am in accord with the statements contained in William Randolph Hearst's editorial in the latest issue of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

"The Washington authorities should concern themselves with domestic affairs and at the moment crime is the most serious of these. President Hoover should lend a friendly ear to Mr. Hearst and avail himself of the fund of information on this subject which he possesses."

THE LOVES OF CHARLIE CHAPLIN

King of Laughs and World's Unluckiest Lover

(Copyright, 1931, by the Boston Evening American)

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Of all Charlie's romances none was as choice a Hollywood gossip tidbit as was his affair with Edna Purviance, his leading lady of "The Woman of Paris." Edna, although not actively engaged in pictures, is still under contract to Charlie Chaplin. Her name is still on Charlie's payroll. They are still friends.

(Have Charlie's women made him? Are his romances responsible for his success and international fame? Hollywood maintains that Charlie developed a studious reaction after each of his reported love affairs. When the romance was definitely ended, wise heads of the movie city anticipated a big picture from the Chaplin studios. If Charlie's unrequited romances brought sorrow to his heart, they brought inspirations to his head.)

CHAPTER 4—HIS ROMANCE WITH EDNA

When fortune dropped thousands in Chaplin's lap and impowered him to choose his own leading lady, Edna Purviance was the answer to Charlie's demands.

He couldn't resist her undeniable beauty when he met her one night at a ball at St Francis' Hotel at San Francisco. And he invited her to come to the studio for a screen test.

Charlie had signed a contract with the Essanay Film Corporation for $1000 a week, a sum which in those days was not alone fabulous to the comic but to the country as well.

IMPRESSED HIM

Charlie was assigned studio space at a place called Niles, California, a suburb of San Francisco. This was in 1915.

When Edna took the screen test, Charlie was impressed with the result. Edna's 17 years registered youth and spontaneity, vivacity and interest. She proved a perfect screen counterpart for Charlie.

They were thrown into constant companionship with each other. They had to discuss the scenes and the sets. Charlie sought her counsel. He was impressed with her honest criticism. He liked her frankness.

They seemed temperamentally compatible.

The couple came to San Francisco nightly to walk along Broadway, the main stem of the Western metropolis.

An SOS was sounded if Charlie and Edna weren't seen strolling down the rialto, arm in arm, alert and alive with each other's company.

ROMANCE BUDDING

Romance was fast overtaking them both.

Edna understood the shy and timid pantomime artist. She recognized his genius. And Charlie simply couldn't resist her blonde beauty.

For more than two years Charlie was never seen with anyone else but Edna Purviance.

There was constant rumor of marriage. A friendship of such duration was bound to culminate in marriage, Hollywood gossiped. Yet Edna kept mum. Charlie, too, said nothing.

Whatever Miss Purviance's views were on the subject, whatever her heart sentiments, however she thought about the matter, she never revealed. This brilliant actress didn't wear her heart on her sleeves.

Movie friends pursued the question of marriage with Chaplin. They repeatedly sought information but to all her inquirers Edna smiled an all-smiling answer:

"ONE NEVER KNOWS."

Here was a romance of different aspect in Hollywood. Hitherto fanfare and trumpet accompanied announcement of marital intentions between stars. Cinema companies capitalized on the publicity.

But Edna and Charlie refused to divulge their heart secrets.

The loneliness that Charlie always felt, the tragic something that always seemed to hover over him, Edna understood and recognized.

She "played up" to Charlie. If he wanted to make "whoopee," Edna was ready. If he sought mental companionship, Edna supplied that, too. She catered to his every whim and fancy. She asked very little in return.

She was aware of the genius in Charlie—of the need of her own subordination if she was to carry on with the man who discovered her and made her a screen star, a brilliant actress.

She was willing to submerge her own personality for the sake of Charlie's.

Yet what every woman knows, Edna knew plenty of. She could handle Charlie better than could his brother, Sydney, who in the early days managed Charlie's affairs. It was Sydney who refused to permit Charlie to renew his contract with the Essanay Film Corp. for $5000 a week.

"Watch over him, Edna," Sydney told Charlie's first leading lady and playmate. "Watch over him. Keep him from binding that Essenay contract. I can get him $10,000 weekly. I know it. You tell him he's worth it. Sell him the idea."

SOLD HIM THE IDEA

Edna did sell Charlie the idea of his worth. And as temperamentally she silenced him and prevented him from signing, Sydney, in New York, contracted for his brother with the Mutual Film Corp. at a weekly salary of $10,000.

The figures overwhelmed Charlie.

He sought out Edna. He told her the good news, but she already knew.

The agreement called for Charlie's personal supervision and direction of a subsidiary company of the Mutual Film Corporation, to be known as the Loan Star and located in Hollywood.

For a brief spel the gossipers insisted the couple had secretly married.

Edna and Charlie were the best of chums.

They went places together. They were frequently seen at smart dinner and dance resorts.

They were constantly in each other's company.

And then something happened—something tragic, that temporarily blighted both their lives.

(More of Edna Purviance's romance with Charlie will be told in tomorrow's editions of the Boston Evening American. Edna was Charlie's first leading woman. Charlie never forgot that.)

-with-

May Christie

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—I spent several days at Spring Lake. Which, as you know, is on the New Jersey coast.

And how do you think I made the first lap of the journey there? BY BOAT!

MAY CHRISTIE

You can get an awfully good luncheon aboard . . .

The day was warm, but with a merry breeze (thank heaven!) and no sooner did we reach our destination than we were all IN the ocean!

Which felt like lukewarm silk, albeit with boisterous waves . . . but not the East Hampton kind, which literally send you flying . . .

Shakespearean Excerpts

We were at a very charming little concert, followed by a dance.

The high light of the "Petite Concert" was a performance . . . rather, I should say, excerpts . . . of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" given by versatile Nanette Bayne and that clever actor of 40 years' experience, George Vivian.

Nanette Bayne gave an excellent performance in the role of the tragic young heroine.

With a little cap of pearls upon her brunette locks, and arrayed in a flowing white dress with a deep sapphire blue velvet coat, she made a pretty and appealing Juliet.

Mr. George Vivian has a beautiful speaking voice . . . full of timbre . . . resonant, if you know what I mean. He is a well-known actor, particularly in Chicago, where for many years he has headed the Chicago Civic Repertoire Company . . . and I hope I haven't got the third word wrong. . .?

The tall, slender and very blonde Miss Helen Schafmeister played the piano dee-vinely. Of all her numbers, I confess I enjoyed her "Turkey in the Straw" . . . (the "concert transcription" being by David Guion) . . . the best!

How one little head can hold such a repertory of music as this young woman's is amazing to me!

Dancers Plentiful

Mrs. Jasper Bayne's was a large party last Saturday evening. Mrs. Leontine Harris (who was Miss Phipps) was there . . . she is spending the summer in Spring Lake.

And quite a number of YOUNG MEN were present . . . good-looking young men . . . light-footing it indefatiguabily.

So we enjoyed a good deal of exercise!

He is a merry soul, and a great addition to any party.

He plays and sings all the latest ditties in a melodious and (when he lets it out) powerful baritone. He has a classic repertoire as well. He is an amusing young gentleman.

With a rambling duplex bungalow, where he resides in summer, right on the sands, on the edge of the ocean at Bayhead, N. J., with his own private little beach.

The rafters of his big living room rang on Sunday afternoon when he sang "Ole Man River" in his own inimitable way . . . "Dancing in the Dark" . . . "Fascinating Love for Sale" . . . and "There's Rhythm in the River" . . . which was perhaps most melodious of all . . .

Pleasant Luncheon

I had an interesting chat at luncheon at Spring Lake with Miss Louise Burt, who lives on upper Park ave.

She is an interesting blonde girl who has lived much in the South of France . . . particularly Cannes . . . and is studying singing.

Dr. A. H. Hansen was there . . . and a tall, dark young man in the banking business, Mr. Brice.

Also Mr. Johnny Norton . . . and Tony Sarg, the well-known artist, who would make any week-end party amusing . . .!

Doing all kinds of clever and absurd tricks with his lithe fingers (lithe is the right word, so don't contradict me!) he made us all laugh heartily during luncheon . . .!

When the Young Man Who * * * and I were seated in the train, homeward bound, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilson Warley, of upper Fifth ave., walked into our coach.

We had a moment's chat before the train started. She looked well and sunburned.

Praise for Jersey

One station later, who should walk in and seat himself in the Pullman chair opposite us but Major Philip Rhinelander!

We had quite a visit. And how he praised the charms of New Jersey . . . !

At every station he would inform me that here was an excellent golf course . . . or here beautiful homes . . . or here a little town I simply must visit . . . !

He waxed most eloquent of all over the beauties of Asbury Park.

When he first knew some of these towns, they were nothing but little hamlets . . . or just an estate or two . . .

As Major Rhinelander is head of one of the oldest families in America, he ought to know . . .

He had been week-ending, like us, with some friends in New Jersey and, previous to that, had just returned from a visit to Fredericksburg, in Virginia, where the wood-ticks (that's the right name for these inquisitive little insects, isn't it?) almost ate him alive . . . !

"Ammonia is the only thing for them," he assured me, solemnly.

"Finest Resort"

Major Rhinelander adores New York . . . and so do I. Curiously enough, he made a remark to me in the train as we sped along through New Jersey that I quite recently wrote in this column . . .

He said: "New York is the finest health resort in the world!"

Which was exactly what the late Dr. Frank Crane assured me once upon a time . . . !

Major Rhinelander has a big, cool house just off 5th ave., full of historic coats-of-mail and wonderful records . . . both military and civil . . . of his interesting family.

His aunt, Mrs. Oakley . . . he told me . . . has sprained her ankle.

His brother, Major Oakley Rhinelander, is, as usual, in Germany this summer, occupying his family castle on the Rhine, not far from the historic spot where that golden-haired siren, the Lorelei, combed her long locks, and sang dee-vinely, luring infatuated gentlemen to destruction . . . !

I have gazed with deep interest at the painting of Major Oakley Rhinelander's Rhineland home in the drawing room of his house, which is just off 5th ave., on W. 52nd st. . . . another cool home in that healthy summer resort, lil ol' New York!

Volcano Buries Ten Under Mud in Mexico

Mexico City, Aug. 6 (AP)—Ten persons were buried under tons of dirt when Mt. Tlanapa, considered a non-volcanic mountain, violently erupted yesterday, hurling streams of water and mud upon houses at its base. It is located near Coscomatepec, Vera Cruz.

Troops and volunteer workmen removed two bodies from the mud.

Coats of White Defy Showers

By ANN ARDEN

IF EVER praises should be sung for modern fashions, they should be paeans of gratitude for the passing of the old raincoat—that ill-fitted, drab covering that made rainy days doubly difficult. The new era of rainwear makes it a positive pleasure to have a shower now and then. Especially when you know that the coat you hastily don is going to have as trim, well-tailored lines as your favorite sports coat.

* * *

A WHITE raincoat is about the smartest dull day costume which it is possible to own. They are made of material that sheds the water and that, consequently, can be kept clean with only a little extra trouble.

* * *

THE RAINCOAT pictured is of white rubberized crepe de chine, very light weight, trim and swagger. The turn-over collar is faced in black, as are the capacious slant top pockets. The easy-to-slip-into sleeve has a comfortable looseness held by strap and black buckle at the wrist. The belt is run through circular black buckle, and black bone buttons mark the double breasted closing.

WOMEN AT smart seaside resorts are wearing white raincoats over their sports frocks, and even over evening dresses when the sky is cloudless, but fog and evening mist threaten to devastate filmy fabrics.

THE WHITE raincoat looks appropriate attending outdoor sports events, and should be accepted as a necessity in the college girl's wardrobe.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs, or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or in Station WAAB.

Players Score in Stage Hits

The University Players, an amateur group of college girls and men, who are interested in dramatics for art's and their own sakes, are having a most successful season.

Almost all of them have some professional stage experience but their productions are being rendered with a perfection and finish that credits them with more than that. This applies especially to this week's performances of "The Trial of Mary Dugan," which have and still are drawing large audiences. Rehearsals are well under way for "Juno and the Paycock," which will be put on during the week beginning August 17, as well as for "The Guardsmen," which goes on this coming Monday.

On Saturday, the 8th, there will be a special performance in the shape of recital of dancing by that inimitable pair, Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn. It will be their first, though we hope not their last, appearance on Cape Cod, and promises to be a brilliant occasion—a high spot in the summer season. Mr. Shawn has only very recently returned from a triumphal tour of Germany, where he received the applause of thousands wherever he danced.

Mrs. W. Stuart Symington of Baltimore, who has been spending the summer months at her place on Fisher's Island, is visiting Mrs. Francis Crane at Woods Hole. Mrs. Crane's son, Charles Leatherbee, is one of the founders and directors of the players, and Mrs. Symington has come on for the special purpose of seeing several performances by his company. Mrs. Crane expects to entertain Mrs. Symington at a dinner-party before one of these, so that her guest may meet her friends in Woods Hole and its vicinity.

The Antiquarian Society of Plymouth is to have a garden party on the grounds of their house, on Wednesday, Aug. 12. This is an annual affair and attracts a large number of summer colonists along the South Shore and the Cape.

LET WOMEN DO WORK, HE'S TOO TIRED

—By Gilbert Seldes—

GILBERT SELDES

"WITH UNCONTROLLABLE DELIGHT," writes Harold R. Johnson, "I read of your plan to make kids and old fogies do the world's work. I'm tired and need rest."

Mr. Johnson misses the point only by a fraction of a mile. My idea was for us to have our rest before we got tired. However, he has an idea of his own.

"Put all the women to work," he says. "They've been over to the neighbor's too long a-gossiping—centuries now. Let them have men's 'glory'— sweat, grime, trouble, worry.

"They say that modern machinery—in laundries, canneries, distilleries and power houses—has all but abolished housework. Man's fertile brain conceived these drudgery-saving institutions. Why not let man benefit?"

Equality Offered

"Besides, women want complete equality—to do as men have done. We've fought, slaved, drank, cursed, worn pants and bowed to them (ladies, not pants). Women now vote, smoke and chew, work in men's offices, stay out till morning and run away from women's old 'place.'

"My idea is to give it to them stronger. More, fiercer, fuller equality. Let them drink, smoke, vote, steal, hold office, 'man' the army and navy, dig coal, sweep the streets (cleaner than men) and DO ALL WORK HITHERTO IN THE SOLE DOMAIN OF 'SUPREME' MAN! Yes, give them all our rights, vices, jobs, duties—even our old pants. GIVE 'EM THE WORKS! And we can adjust ourselves as the weaker sex—to stay home, go visiting, be loved and protected by the new stronger sex. And let the kids (if) be cared for by the State; it must accommodate them or democracy is a cheap lie.

"Please permit my improvement on your program. Prepare, fellow-males, to cease all necessary toil so women can 'run' the world. Hoorah for men! Hoorah for the new supreme sex—long may they slave for their better-halves, stimulated by that alluring social opiate 'equality'!"

Why Men Hate Women

I wonder what makes men hate women so. Alexander the Great, who wished to believe himself immortal, said that "sleep and commerce with the sex are the things that make me most sensible of my mortality," and if most men felt that way the grudge against womankind would be justified; but the romantic poets have led us to believe that love of women makes man a companion of the gods.

Whatever the deep psychological causes are for such rancor as Mr. Johnson's more immediate reasons must exist. During the war philosophers on both sides assured us that profound abysses separated French from German; but Frenchmen probably hated Germans because Germans wore their hair the wrong way, and vice versa. Men dislike women, so far as they do, because they consider women dishonorable, which means only that women have different standards; they dislike women because they fear that they will never conquer them. As the over-rated Ambrose Bierce said in his only first-class epigram, "If one could only fall into a woman's arms without falling into her hands!"

Prosperity by Order

The more I hear of the Governor of Oklahoma the more I love him. Flushed with success (or was it failure?) at the bridgehead leading into Texas, Alfalfa Bill has now come out for flat prosperity. Owing to distance and atmospheric pressure, I am vague about Oklahoma details, but the big, great facts do make their mark on me. The latest of these is Governor Murray's decision that oil should sell at a dollar a barrel. The current price was below 30 cents and heroic efforts brought it up to 50; but at 50 the state gets nothing and the Governor wants a dollar.

In my bleary state of ignorance of economics, I do not know whether this is good, sound business or not. What I like is the appearance, twice in one week, of Alfalfa Bill, single-handed, against the world. There is a touch of Mussolini in all of us, and in the Governor it has come out; all he needs now is a press agent, a turn-down pipe or a crooning voice, and he will become a candidate for President. Of course, it would be better for him if he could manage, before the nominating conventions, to become Governor of a somewhat larger state—and I don't mean Texas.

Mr. De Mille's Idea

Mr. Walter Wanger informs me that I was wrong in attributing to him the fundamental idea of the Film Directors' Guild—the organization which, according to report, Mr. Wanger is forming with Vidor, Milestone and Cecil de Mille. The idea, says Mr. Wanger, originated with Mr. de Mille. I know nothing of it, except that it seems to be taking the right path. It is the path the theater has taken at various times, and with success in certain outstanding instances: when the production of plays was put in the hands of those who actually did the work, the directors. I do not mean that directors in the movies should be burdened with the financial side of their business; but I do mean that the choice of subject, the treatment and development, should be exclusively in the hands of the people who are responsible for the final output.

These Times

Now the world rocks with pain and hate;
But a rosebush flames outside my gate
And out of the blue, on valiant wings,
A skylark floats and bravely sings.
Though suddenly our old faith falls,
The grass still trails by the crumbling walls;
And the moon comes up, and the sun goes down,
And the stars endure when we lose a crown.
O panic and tears and war may seem
To rule the earth; yet there is a dream—
A dream of peace in the hearts of men,

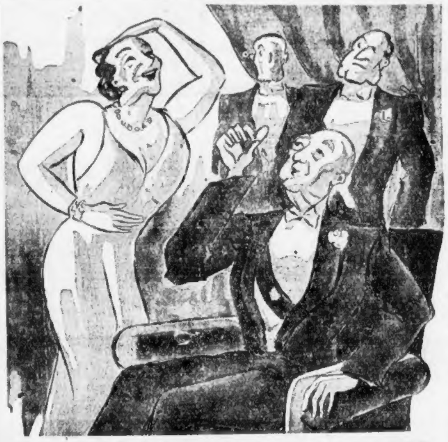
Charles Hanson Towne.



"Lord Beamish, have you seen me pat my head and rub my stomach?"

Off the Press

—By The Reader—

OUR POPULAR TASTE in romance has been much deplored in England. It is not so much the gun stuff that leads so much to head-shaking as our delight in love on the sands of Araby. Even the London Times chides us for our obsession with bearded Don Juans on the fleet camel, the harem complex, virgins astray in Algeria and other warm aspects of the Hollywood-Mohammedan type.

I don't know that it's our fault, really. Indeed, I am not sure at all. It's all an importation that took root here like morning glory weed and the British sparrow.

And we owe it all to English ladies. Laurence Hope began it with her desert lyrics. The novel form was given to it by "Three Weeks." Ethel M. Dell led it to its apogee with "The Sheik," and the vogue was on.

It led to a flood of Sheik films and new cinematic reputations. California is still blighted with oasis villas, with Ouled-Nail awnings held up by spears. The spirit of Valentino still informs our sand film erotica.

And Mrs. Dell is still indefatigably writing. In "The Captive of The Sahara" (Dodd, Mead) which is "The Sheik" all over again with a few motor-cars to give a modern touch, she does strike an original note. She has moved the set some hundreds of miles farther into the desert.

Isma Crichton, one of the rigidly circumspect young British ladies who are always wandering into these tracts, joins the caravan of Alcibiades B. Hoyt, a Yankee archaeologist. There is no end of adventure. Isma learns the state secrets of Said ben Aissa who has a revolution afoot, and his women folk join him in his insistence that he should marry her.

Ben Aissa's love throbs with both fierceness and purity. She finds in it the fervor and idealism of her rejected sweetheart, Arne, whose first name, as you might guess, is David. She succumbs, almost.

"Why can't you marry me?" he urged fiercely.

"And before she could evade him she was lying crushed against his breast, shuddering under the burning kisses."

But Arabic-Britannic love is as prone to grief as the sparks fly upward. The Said ben Aissa, his sister and Alcibiades the harmless ruins finder, are slain when the rebellion is squelched. The French Marines appear in the nick of time—perhaps because the Legion has been cut down for economy's sake—and the tearful Isma finds refuge in the arms of her David.

This is a calorific tale and a pretty good one of its kind. As literature it is not a bit below "The Sheik," and so vividly done that those who like it won't really need to see the inevitable talkie version, though they probably will.

A Number of Things

—By Charles Hanson Towne—

THE OTHER NIGHT, sitting on a veranda in the country, a few of us tuned in on the radio, just to see what was going on in the big world.

We happened to get a baker's program; and, believe me or not, this is what came out of the warm summer air:

"Schubert was bred in Vienna, but he wasn't a Vienna loaf."

Fascinated, we refused to turn off. And we were rewarded by this priceless announcement in a song:

"If you cheer up,
Clouds will clear up."

• • •

Still we were charmed by the imbecility of the world at large, and we found ourselves wondering, each one of us, how many homes all up and down our valley were listening to similar drivel, and we were about to enter into a discussion of the old question as to how long the radio would prove popular if this sort of thing continued.

Charles H. Towne

Then, out of the night came my pet abomination—a breathless male quartet rendering that loveliest song, "Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes," with, of course, the misquoting of the words. "But might I of Jove's nectar sup," which causes the verb to become "sip."

One would think that singers could, at least learn the proper words but as they so often don't even learn the music, who am I to make such a demand?

And then, changing our station, there came to us a golden speaking voice—a woman's voice so beautiful that it flowed into the room and out upon our dim veranda like moonlight after rain.

Margaret Anglin was reciting the poems of John Masefield. It was the reversal of an anticlimax.

Not one of us spoke. But had you been there you could have felt, as I did, the thrill of joy and peace that came instantly into our little group.

"I must go down to the seas again, to the lonely sea and the sky,

And all I ask is a tall ship and a star to steer her by;

And the wheel's kick and the wind's song and the white sail's shaking,

And a grey mist on the sea's face and a grey dawn breaking."

The previous gibberish was instantly forgotten; and out there in the starlit night, the world was well lost to us.

And when something of James Stephens was said, and the program ended, not one of us said a word, for there was nothing to say. But I was thinking to myself, "Will the radio audiences like this? Isn't it too good for them? They always want jazz, and cheap comedy, and execrable puns. They want low music-hall drivel, and up-to-the-minute slang. There is no place for an artist like Margaret Anglin in the studios." And I feared that she would never speak again over the air.

Then I began, each day to look for the program; and, to my delight, I found that Miss Anglin would have another recital. We tuned in again. It was too good to be true that she would once more recite real poetry. There would have been requests, if any, for mere doggerel.

But this was not so. Instead, hundreds of listeners had asked for Shakespeare, for Yeats, for Shelley, Keats, Browning; and we heard "The Ballad of Father Gilligan," and "The Ode on a Grecian Urn," both rendered as one would wish them to be rendered in a dream.

Now, here is an amazing manifestation. It crushes that ancient and false idea that the public is content with the worst, and cares nothing for the best. And it proves, too, that if, to our shame, there is no place for an actress like Miss Anglin in our theatre, there is a greater place for her on the radio. And she will reach millions, where formerly she reached only thousands. Why had no one thought of her before?

Long ago, Whitman said. "To have great poets we must have great audiences, too." Miss Anglin might have been the greatest actress of her time, but her art would have been of little worth if she had been forced to play before empty benches.

And so one must give thanks for one of man's most astonishing inventions, so long as we can have programs, and golden voices like hers.

Famed Western Band Heads for N. Y.

By N. F. T.

Come East, young man, come East! Such is the call of radio executives to those with sufficient talent who are laboring in the middle or far West. New York being home plate insofar as fame and fortune are figured, a good many of the boys out Chicago way are lending attentive ears.

Perhaps the most celebrated of all musical aggregations in the Illinois metropolis, is the Coon-Sanders Orchestra. This group of syncopating musickers are waving bye-bye to bing bang town, in favor of long green dangled before them by interests with headquarters in the effete East.

• • •

In other words, beginning October 1 the peppy western dance combination will be added to the payroll of The New Yorker Hotel, broadcasting of course through NBC networks.

THRILLS PROMISED TONIGHT

Local studio activity has been sort of playing dead lately and live news in Hub halls of the ether is rare. Tonight, however, WBZ should enjoy a sizeable audience when "Sky Giant" is sent out at 10 p. m. It is reported as a dramatic hit, based on the photoplay "Dirigible" about to open at the RKO Keith Theater. Radio actors in the cast include John McNamara and Robert Donohue, with Peg La Centra in the feminine lead role.

Raymond Knight and his Cuckoo outfit were hurrying to a New York theater very recently, being in a hurry to make the curtain following their NBC period on the air. Exceeding the speed limit was resorted to along the line, which quite naturally brought one of New York's coppers alongside Ray's machine in short order. It wasn't funny until the aggravated motorcycle man snarled, "Say you guys must be cuckoo."

MORE LOCAL LATHER

Malcolm McCormick, of the WBZ staff, directs the business doings of the Apollo quartet, which is not an ad, it's because very few people know it . . . Some of the things other radio scribes worry about are Hum and Strum's stage salary . . . When the different organists get fired and who cuts incomes with who . . . the snoops! Polly O'Brien is up to her very big brown eyes in radio continuity right now, with her boss away from the Bradford studios, an' everything . . . Al Marlin at WNAC does one very hard to beat impersonation of the Shadow . . . which isn't easy . . . that is, to do it right.

That undersea business Ted Husing was to figure in on Tuesday, was suddenly called off. They say a boiler blew up aboard one the boats.

Among six musicians in Doris (WBZ) Tirella' ensemble there are six nations represented. Italy, Denmark, Sweden, Greece, Russia and last but not least, our own beloved lad. Doris herself is the American.

COUNTRY MEN

It isn't surprising to note the listener squawks that resulted when Bill Whipple made a temporary radio exit from the waves last Sunday. Bill is exceedingly popular. Rumor still persists concerning him joining forces with Ed (Yankee Philosopher) Young for a rural bit. Ed, by the way is sojourning down in Maine right now . . . the hick!

Amos 'n' Andy have been heard to wail lately because they get so little publicity . . . imagine wanting something one doesn't need. It's regustin.'

Word comes from Scituate telling about the steady recovery of Aidan (WBZ) Redmond. Aidan includes expressions of hope that another week or so will find him back taking his microphone turn hereabouts.

Co-operation Wins Among Dairymen

Washington, Aug. 6 (AP)—Farmers in the 12 northeastern states market more dairy products co-operatively than any other agricultural commodities sold through their own associations in that area.

The sales amounted to 55.8 per cent of the total cash income of $408,000,000 received from dairy products sold by farmers in those states. Some of the figures by states for that year follow:

Vermont, $29,451,577; Connecticut, $14,616,792; Massachusetts, $9,503,738; New Hampshire, $5,209,761; Maine, $5,101,319; Rhode Island, $910,000.

Huge Russian Loan Over-Subscribed

Moscow, Aug. 6 (AP)—Newspapers announced today that the 1,600,000,000 ruble "third and decisive year" internal loan had been oversubscribed, but that the authorities will continue accepting subscriptions until every worker in the Soviet Union has his certificate.

The announcement coincided with the opening of the "ten days of industrialization," a nation-wide campaign encouraging the workers to complete the five-year plan in four years.

CLINICS BATTLE PARALYSIS; 48 HIT IN 5 DAYS

Infantile paralysis clinics for every health board in the state were urged by Dr. George H. Bigelow, state health commissioner, in outlining a state-wide fight against the disease.

He also called on parents for a campaign of watchfulness as the best means of prevention.

In the first five days of this month 48 cases were reported, he said, against 60 reported for the entire 31 days of last month and nine cases more than for the six-month period ending June 30.

September is the most common month for the peak to be reached but this year's indications point to August as the possible peak, he added.

BOY OFFERS BLOOD

He again called on former patients, who have recovered, for donations of their blood to be used as a preventative serum.

One of the first to volunteer was Joseph Keenan of 30 Tremont st., Charlestown, only recently returned from the C. M. T. C. camp.

Keenan, who is now 18, was afflicted in 1918, but has fully recovered and is skillful in athletics.

One of the largest clinics now in operation is at the Children's Hospital, Longwood ave., Roxbury. It is affiliated with the State Department of Health.

In today's statement, Dr. Bigelow stressed the work of the Harvard infantile paralysis commission and the expert advice available for sufferers.

WHEN TO CALL DOCTOR.

"Any physician may phone this office or the Harvard infantile commission and obtain the services of a physician skilled in the early recognition of the disease," he said.

"Early recognition is very important for after paralysis sets in, the serum is of no use.

"Splendid work is being done by the Harvard Commission in the after-care of patients so permanent paralysis may be reduced to a minimum."

Dr. Bigelow again instructed on the test for paralysis that may be tried by parents who suspect their child has the disease.

"Have the child sit up in bed with the knees bent and then lower the head between the knees. If the back is stiff and there is discomfort a doctor should be called at once."

MAE MURRAY WON LOVE ROW

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 6 (AP)—In a cottage by the sea Mae Murray, blonde film actress, and her husband, Prince David M'divani, were reunited today. Her divorce suit had been dropped, but Miss Murray had won her point—the right to continue her career in films.

"He was jealous of my career, because he thought it took me away from him too much," she said, after the reconciliation was announced. "Now he is never going to be jealous or interfere again."

Miss Murray said she and her husband "realized more now that we have always been madly in love with each other."

Flour Seized to Make Dole Bread

Sydney, Australia, Aug. 6 (AP)—Seeking to provide the unemployed with bread during a dispute with master bakers, Premier Lang today authorized the seizure of a thousand tons of flour intended for shipment abroad.

The government recently signed a contract with one company for the sole supply of "dole bread," but the master bakers refused to supply the company at the stipulated price.

MANY SISTERS IN MISSION FIELDS

Several natives of Greater Boston and New England are included in the group of Maryknoll Sisters assigned to duty in the Catholic foreign mission fields in south China, Manchuria and Hawaiian Islands.

The New Englanders going to south China include Sister M. Rosemary Defelice of New Haven, Ct., and Sister Santa Maria Manning of Boston. Other sisters going to this part of the missionary field are Sister M. Chanel Xavier and Sister Maria Teresa Yeung, both of Hong Kong; Sister M. Colombiere Bradley of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Sister M. Frederica Hall of San Francisco.

Sister Veronica Marie Carney of Somerville has been assigned to Manchuria province, with Sister M. Grace Koch of Philadelphia, Sister M. Famula Clements of Detroit, Sister Ellen M. Murphy of Omaha, Sister M. Gloria Wagner of Baltimore and Sister M. DeLellis McKenna of Lexington, Ky.

Sister Maureen Mahoney of Somerville, Sister M. St. Anne Sexton of Framingham, Sister Maria del Rey Corcoran of Dorchester, Sister M. Bernardus Lonergan of Somerville and Sister M. Natalie King of Burlington, Vt., have been assigned to various houses of the Maryknoll Sisters in Hawaii.

Others assigned to this section are Sister M. Majella Beck of Philadelphia, Sister M. Colette Rettie of South Pasadena, Cal., Sister M. St. Bernard Donnelly of Chicago, Sister M. Alicia Shader of Troy, N. Y., Sister M. Evelyn Farrell of Montreal, Sister Helen Marie Scully of New York city and Sister Marie Juliette Puthoff of Dayton, O.

GERMAN CHIEFS SPEED TO ROME

Berlin, Aug. 6 (AP)—Germany's touring statesmen, Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and Foreign Minister Julius Curtius, were speeding to Rome today for a friendly talk with the heads of the Italian state.

Herr Bruening in a statement before they entrained last night said the visit would give them opportunity to meet personally Premier Mussolini and his foreign minister.

"In Germany it is generally realized," he said, "that all the political decisions Italy has made in recent years were arrived at in a spirit of serious responsibility for the pacification and economic rehabilitation of Europe—two aims in which the interests of Germany and Italy converge."

Business in Berlin remained normal today as Banks reopened for the second day of unrestricted payments after having been closed for three weeks.

Bat-Killing Added to Lynn Police Duties

Lynn police last night added the eradication of bats to their list of official duties. William Shumway called headquarters, and complained he was exhausted from an hour's struggle with a bat that had invaded his room in an Essex st. lodging house.

Patrolmen John Gearey and J. T. Casey, armed with brooms, went to his aid and the bat was killed after a lively 20 minutes.

Every LUCKY STRIKE is made of the finest tobacco leaves the world can offer—the finest from Turkey—the finest from Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, Georgia and the Carolinas—the Cream of many Crops throughout the world. But all tobacco leaves, regardless of price and kind, as nature produces them, contain harsh irritants. LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process—a process that mellows, that purifies, that includes the use of the modern Ultra Violet Ray—expels certain harsh irritants naturally present in every tobacco leaf. We sell these expelled irritants to manufacturers of chemical compounds, who use them as a base in making sheep-dip*, as well as a powerful spraying solution for fruits, flowers and shrubs—enough to permit the daily dipping of over 50,000 sheep or the daily spraying of many thousands of trees. Thus, you are sure these irritants, naturally present in all tobacco leaves, are not in your LUCKY STRIKE. "They're out—so they can't be in!" No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

RAISING FLAG WILL NOT MAKE PATRIOTS OF SCHOOL CHILDREN

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ROBERT E. ROGERS

THERE HAS BEEN A TEMPERED APPROVAL, I notice, of the announcement that hereafter the school children of Boston will personally take care of the raising of the flags at their schools. Nobody seems to disapprove; on the other hand, nobody seems strongly convinced that the procedure, however faithfully carried out, will do much to combat Bolshevism. Even Chairman Hurley isn't very positive about it.

Most people would be more enthusiastic about the idea, I suspect, if they thought it had been original with the School Committee. But the committee seems to have been egged on to it by an organization which I happen never to have heard of before, the Legion of Valor. It may be, for all I know, a very worthy and useful organization. It may be, on the other hand, just another of those little groups of cranks who spend their time trying to force ideas and procedures into the public school system under threat of calling people who disagree with them "unpatriotic."

I do not believe there was a bit less genuine respect for the flag before 1917 than there is today. It is certain, however, that there is a lot more noise about it nowadays, a lot more ritual and ceremony and compulsion regarding it, and a lot more people whose chief business seems to be whooping up the flag and forcing other people to whoop it up also.

Some Yankee Faults

I do not believe that we were less patriotic, or more lawless, or anything in that sort, in the old days when the flag was put out as a matter of course by the janitor and taken in at night equally as a matter of course. I don't believe that an elaborate ceremonial, morning and night, is going to make our children any more genuinely patriotic or law-abiding. In fact, one cannot help having a suspicion that this emphasis on ritual is only a sorry, second-hand substitute for cleaning house in America and getting rid of the causes which make for lawlessness and lukewarm citizenship. And a lot of those causes are not the prerogative of the working class, or the foreign-born, or the so-called radical economist, either. Many of them are the special privileges of the old, well-to-do Yankee stock.

I remember once being present at the annual dinner of one of our more aristocratic patriotic societies. That is, the ancestors from whom the members of the society derived their existence were so far back, historically speaking, that there couldn't have been many of them. In comparison with them, the Daughters of the Revolution are a large mob of fourth generation people, immigrants and such, who had just slipped in under the wire before April, 1775. These were the old, prime, aged-in-the-wood article.

Red, white and blue is a rather terrible dress combination for most women, but most of them were wearing it. They had tri-colored pompons and rosettes and ribbons across where the shirt front ought to be, and medals and little gold strips, like marksmen's badges, one for each accredited ancestor. One elderly woman had her bodice literally shingled with them.

Heavy on Decorations

The men were in black and white, of course, and an occasional dress uniform of the army or navy. Most of the men wore ribbons across their shirts, and jewelled badges, and one old gentleman wore a jewelled decoration hanging from a red ribbon around his collar, like the Golden Fleece or something. I confess that I thought of a plain, old ancestor of mine, who belonged on the list, and who in his blunt and simple way had gone about in 1634 roasting Indians alive in their villages to the glory of God, and I gagged a little at the decoration.

Before dinner there was prayer by the chaplain and then the Trooping of the Colors. The state flag and the national colors were brought in solemnly by tall and lovely girls in white satin, each attended by two younger girls in white muslin, all six of them with red, white and blue sashes. And then they gave the familiar woman's club salute and pledge and sang "The Star Spangled Banner" and sat down to the cold soup.

The point of it is that everybody in that company belonged to the class that can afford to violate the Eighteenth Amendment in a large way, and probably does; can afford to take liberties with their income tax; is strong for tax-exempt securities, and applauds Secretary Mellon's ideas about extending the lower brackets of the income tax.

In their ideas about labor, particularly radical labor, they are Fascisti, no less. They approve of violence against the trouble-makers. They applaud lawlessness against the lawless. Castor oil, the third degree, the bum's rush, jail and deportation seem to them perfectly justifiable. They forget that their own ancestors were precisely the sort of people they are now howling about, protestants against the existing order.

Not Sincere Patriotism

They are perfectly good patriots and would prove it in a pinch. But I do not believe that all the Ziegfeld Follies stuff that they indulge in with the flag, and which they insist must be carried on by the school children, has anything much to do with their patriotism. If they were working for $35 a week, with prospects of unemployment almost any time, I don't believe that saluting the flag would make or keep them good Americans, if they weren't at heart good Americans already.

We Americans like ritual and flub-dub and fuss-and-feathers. We also like to smooth things over and pretend that everything is for the best in the best of all possible worlds. The habit of patriotic observance is probably a useful and effective habit. The Japanese, the old Prussians and the present-day Russians are witnesses to that truth. But if it came to the inculcation of a genuine patriotism that would stand the gaff, and if I had to make a choice, I think I should let the janitor put the flag up and take it down, and spend the time necessary for forming the hollow square and going through the ritual on some solid, truthful teaching about Things-as-they-are in America and Things-as-they-should-be.

I have no doubt the Legion of Valor is made up of sincere and conscientious folks. But they are putting the cart before the horse. Saluting the flag of a country which you know in your heart is full of lawlessness and injustice and inequality doesn't make for patriotism. But teaching good citizenship may produce a country whose flag you will be proud to salute without any ritual or compulsion. "Woe unto ye who make clean the outside of the cup only!"

MAYOR CURLEY GIVES PORT PLAN BIG BOOST

Heroes Coming

MRS. RICKNER

LIEUT. McCLOY

Many distinguished war veterans will attend the Legion of Valor convention in Boston, August 9 to 12. Among these will be Mrs. A. B. Rickner, of South Poland, Me., formerly Miss Jane Jeffrey, decorated Red Cross nurse, and Lieut. John McCloy, U. S. N., holder of the Congressional Medal of Honor.

HUNDREDS JOIN MOVE TO BUILD BUSINESS

Metropolitan Theater Packed to Hear Addresses by His Honor and Port Leaders

The port of Boston was given a strong forward push today when Mayor James M. Curley urged hundreds to work for its welfare, at a free show given at the Metropolitan Theater by the Paramount Publix corporation.

The mayor was given an ovation by the throng that taxed the capacity of the theater. Several hundred names were added to the membership roll of the Port of Boston Society as a result of his address.

The chief magistrate of the city paid tribute to the Boston Evening American for its assistance in the drive for membership in the society and to the Paramount-Publix Company and its agents for their co-operation.

MAYOR IN A "TALKIE."

Besides his address, the mayor was seen in a talkie-movie in which he set forth the glorious history of the port and the intensive work that is being done to bring it back to its former position as a leader among the ports along the Atlantic seaboard.

The mayor also presented a certificate of membership in the Port of Boston Society to the Paramount-Publix Company, through G. Ralph Branton, assistant general manager of the company. The presentation took place on the stage of the theater.

"BOSTON'S ABLEST MAYOR"

Branton introduced the mayor as one of the "ablest mayors Boston has ever had."

The mayor said:

"It is an exceeding pleasure as mayor of Boston to be permitted to come here and extend congratulations to the Paramount Moving Picture Corporation upon this their 20th anniversary.

"It is significant that upon this their anniversary this great organization, extending throughout

LOS ANGELES TO FLY HERE

With the Navy dirigible Los Angeles hovering overhead, members of the Legion of Valor will give a military demonstration on Boston Common next Monday in connection with the annual convention of the organization to be held here.

More than 200 members of the Legion of Valor, distinguished for their war accomplishments, and their wives are expected to attend the convention. The organization is made up of veterans of all wars.

Mrs. A. B. Ricker of South Poland, Me., the former Jane Jeffrey, the only woman of the A. E. F. to have received the Distinguished Service Cross, will attend the convention.

Lieut. John McCloy, U. S. N., the only member of the organization who holds two Congressional Medals of Honor and the Navy Cross, will be an honor guest. He will bring the convention to the attention of the country with a nation-wide radio broadcast from station WBZ during the sessions.

Quincy Boy Found; Chum Still Missing

A trip to "California and Florida" ended at Deerfied, Ct., for a Quincy boy, it was learned today when the parents of Salvatore Nicastro, 15, of Penn st., Quincy, was notified their boy was there.

No trace of his companion Joseph Mula, 17, of Columbia st., Quincy, was found, the notice said. The two boys left here Tuesday after they told a chum they were going to California and Florida. Nicastro's parents sent trainfare

GIRL DROPS HER LOVE PACT SUIT

The controversy between a Lynn mother and daughter over an alleged money marriage pact, was said to have been settled today when it was announced a suit for $2000 on file in Salem court was withdrawn.

William Krasnow, of Broad st., Lynn, uncle and employer of Miss Sally Till, 28, of 30 Prospect st., told newspapermen she had withdrawn the suit.

The girl charged in the suit that her mother, Mrs. Dora Till, promised to pay $2000 if she would break off a love affair and marry a man of her mother's choice. Miss Till claimed she agreed, but alleged her mother failed to keep her part of the agreement.

Mrs. Till, when seen at her home, denied she had ever interfered with her daughter's boy friends.

HELP! COP GETS LOST ON BEAT—

Officer, call a cop. Patrolman George A. Aldrich is lost on his beat.

No kiddin'! Last night, on the same beat he has tramped for the last 10 years, Patrolman Aldrich of Beverly lost his bearings.

A domestic at one of the large estates, arriving home late, requested his escort for safety's sake. Patrolman Aldrich obliged and after delivering the servant in safety turned around to make his way out of the grounds.

It was dark and he didn't have any compass and he couldn't make out the North star and he kept walking and walking and not getting anywhere in particular.

At last he came out on another estate and inquiring his whereabouts from the night watchman was told he was on the grounds of Judge Moore's home.

"I can set you on the right course," said the watchman, "but it's pretty dark."

"I'll take no more chances," said Patrolman Aldrich. He went to the telephone in Judge Moore's house and called Beverly police headquarters.

"I'm lost," he said.

JAMAICA PLAIN FOLK SAIL

The Jamaica Plain contingent included Dr. and Mrs. W. J. L. O'Brien of Arborway, John Connolly of Hampstead rd., Ellen G. White of Hyde Park ave., Margaret Dillon of Fordham ct., Dr. Hugh McGuire of Center st., Mrs. Catherine McCloskey and Miss Isabelle McCloskey of Center st.

Others aboard included Miss Geraldine Chamberlain of Columbus ave., Somerville, a teacher in the Baxter school; Elmarine Trowbridge, Newton and Boston broker, with Mrs. Trowbridge and Elmarine, Jr.

COURT DROPS FAMILY ROW

A family wrangle in Arlington was dismissed as just that today in East Cambridge court when a brother and sister met in "legal combat."

A charge of trespass was lodged against Francis de Rosa, 26, of High st., Winchester, by his sister, Mrs. Margaret Hurley of Mystic st., Arlington.

Rosa told the court he was parked outside his sister's home when his sister's four-year-old son dashed out to tell him "John (Mrs. Hurley's husband) is hitting Gram."

He said he rescued his mother from the house and took her home.

"It looks like another family wrangle to me," Judge Counihan said in dismissing the charge.

MY ROMANCE

Rudy Locks in His Memory a Perfect Day With Beautiful Fay

Every couple has some super-perfect day amid the perfect days of their romance. Of course, most days are delightfully romantic when they are shared by two who love each other. But there are super-perfect days when all circumstances seem to contribute toward the glamour of the ideal. One locks these preciously in one's memory.

(Rudy Vallee's marriage to Fay Webb, motion picture actress, has been called "the romance of the century." In this series of articles he tells in his own words the thrilling story of that romance. Today he describes one of their super-perfect days together in California.—Editor)

It was such a day [illegible] I had just [illegible] It was [illegible] of my picture. The [illegible] was [illegible]. We had to go on location to a beautiful [illegible] 20 miles from Hollywood. I asked Fay to come along, so she drove me out in her car.

Just at noon the scene was finished. It was the last "shot" of the picture, and Mickey (Marshall) Neilan, the director, called out:

MEANT HOLIDAY

I had enjoyed working in the picture, because everyone had been so kind and helpful, but I was happy to hear the "work's over" announcement, for that meant a short holiday which I could spend with Fay before I had to start back East. Here immediately before us was a whole afternoon and evening to do with as we liked. I felt like a boy when school was out, full of the holiday spirit.

Fay seemed more beautiful than ever that day. She wore the purple-red velvet dress which she had on the first time I saw her. It was most becoming, as all her clothes are, for she designs them herself with a truly artistic touch. And the brilliant sunshine emphasized her dark beauty.

Although I knew that I would have to rush back to New York as soon as possible, I decided that at least today would be a real holiday, free from cares; today would be our day.

Fay immediately sensed my mood, and entered into the spirit of it.

I said to her:

"Now that we have a holiday, what shall we do? That is the question! And to me it's as important as Hamlet's question, 'to be or not to be.'"

Fay knitted her brow in puzzlement. Then a smile flashed across her face when she said:

"We'll go for a drive. It doesn't matter much where we go; we'll just drive."

And drive we did, but I'm sure I couldn't retrace our route, for I paid little attention to where we went. We drove along the coast, into the hills. Whenever we found a particular spot that pleased us we would stop and talk, or just sit and gaze at the sea, or into the bright Pacific heavens.

A brilliant afternoon, a starry evening, a beautiful companionable girl—all contributed toward my super-perfect day. We stopped at a roadside inn high up in the mountains for a wonderful dinner—there under Japanese lanterns we were the happiest couple in the world. Long afterward I mentioned that day to Fay, and she told me that she, too, held it preciously in her memory.

It was rather late when we drove up to Fay's home in Santa Monica. Once I might have feared the wrath of her father, for a prominent Hollywood director told me that he was a very stern man. I afterward learned that this director's sole contact with Mr. Webb had been one evening when the director, in a rather hilarious mood, to say the least, had knocked down several Santa Monica lamp-posts with his car. Mr. Webb, in line of duty as chief of police, had naturally been rather severe.

But I got along very well with Fay's father and mother, and I like them immensely.

Fay was carefully brought up. Although her father and mother were not unduly strict, they gave her the advantage of a careful training.

Her whole make-up is essentially artistic. Her hobby is designing, and she is particularly fond of planning her own clothes, which she does exceedingly well. Everything she wears is designed to bring out her individuality. Also she is fond of perfumes. She always has several different kinds, and often the perfume she wears is changed daily to fit her moods.

It was Fay's artistic temperament which caused her to choose a career in the films. Just after she had finished high school in Santa Monica she attracted the attention of the famous motion picture producer, Louis B. Mayer, who was a close friend of her father's. Mr. Mayer arranged a screen test for her, and was delighted with the result. Her striking features photographed particularly well. She has real ability as an actress and her soft, compelling voice is well adapted to the talkies. During her screen career of three and a half years she played many important roles, and she was within reach of stardom when we were married.

THROUGH WITH FILMS

Just before and after our marriage she had several attractive offers, but now she has no desire to returned to the screen. When we became engaged, I asked her if she wanted to continue her work. Her reply was:

"What would you like me to do?" I refused to commit myself, saying:

"I want you to do what you would like to do."

"Very well, then," Fay replied, "I'll tell you just what I want to do. I want to devote all of myself to making you happy. Of course, I liked my work, but now you are far more important to me than anything I could do myself."

I was happy to hear her say that, for I had earnestly hoped that that would be her attitude. Of course, I appreciate the desire of many women for careers as well as husbands. Often there is no conflict between career and marriage; in fact many husbands take pride in their wives' careers. It is certainly understandable and justifiable that a woman should want to do something on her own account, and if Fay had wanted to continue her screen work, I should not have objected; but I am old-fashioned enough to appreciate the fact that Fay considers our marriage her real career.

JEWEL ROBBERY WITNESS FOUND

Inspector Frank Feeley of Newton announced today he had found an important witness in the investigation of the $110,000 jewel robbery of Jacques Leff in Newton a week ago.

Feeley said the witness, a young man, saw the five robbers in their car parked in Beacon st., near Newton Center sq., for more than an hour, the day of the holdup and took the registration number, which corresponds with that in the possession of the police.

When the witness returns to town in a day or two he will be questioned at length, Feeley said.

Autoist Sentenced on Drunk Charges

Edward Deveraux, 23, of Bowdoin st., Medford, in Somerville Court today was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction on a charge of operating his automobile for the third time while under the influence of liquor. He appealed and was held in $1000. On a charge of drunkenness he was given three months and held in $200 bail.

DAILY TRUE STORY

THE MIRAGE

'BILL, HAVEN'T YOU ANYTHING TO TELL ME?"

A SINGLE LIGHT glowed garishly in the living room.

It showed the uncurtained windows, the bits of varnished space on the floor where furniture had stood, as a sort of protecting covering—and where no furniture now stood. It showed the cold ashes in the grate and the thin layer of dust on the floors.

Bill Keith snapped off the light and started across the living room to the [illegible] at the foot of the stairs to the sleeping rooms above. His footsteps sounded [illegible] on the bare floors.

He turned [illegible] he was hanging up his coat. Then, even in the darkness he felt [illegible]. Of course it wasn't Sandy's lumbering feet on the back stairs. Leila had taken Sandy, too, along with Mike, the big, clownish gray cat, when she had gone.

He p[illegible] the [illegible] their bedroom. Another [illegible] snapped on. There were the twin beds, [illegible] with one of them freshly made [illegible] had been left three days before [illegible] other was [illegible] he had [illegible] was to work that morning.

He [illegible] out of [illegible] into a bathrobe and then turned on the taps for a bath. Cold [illegible] the water. Again he remembered. Since she had gone [illegible] the coal heater [illegible] and there was no hot water. He [illegible] when the [illegible] and then [illegible]. He'd [illegible] to remember [illegible] told [illegible] did the [illegible] man come [illegible]

In bed he tried to read [illegible] he went [illegible] over his shoulder [illegible] he read the first paragraph.

Listening for Car
But It Was Farley's

Each time he found himself listening for the [illegible] of the old family car coming up the hill. He'd used to [illegible] that and [illegible] ten [illegible] Leila had driven over to the movies. Then he remembered. He [illegible] the magazine to the floor [illegible] for the night and tried to get to sleep.

He woke up with a start, taut, listening. But it wasn't the Keith car. It was Farley's across the street. He got out of bed and climbed into the other twin.

That was August—

By the middle of September Bill Keith [illegible] lighting the lamp in the living room downstairs when he came in [illegible] [illegible] through the [illegible] turned [illegible] about the [illegible] acquired a habit [illegible] the bed. But [illegible] find himself [illegible] car grumbling [illegible] found himself thinking [illegible] he heard Sandy [illegible] on the back [illegible] kitchen.

He [illegible] when he worked in the yard on Sundays [illegible] what [illegible] explanation after Leila [illegible] Told [illegible]

[illegible]

Yet if he couldn't [illegible]

Each week, [illegible] on pay day he sent money [illegible]

[illegible] he WOULD [illegible] place [illegible] the monotony of hotel life [illegible] other reason than [illegible] neighbors [illegible] nothing wrong between him [illegible] Leila. The next day, on his [illegible] to work he listed the house. And that week, he bought the ring Leila had mentioned she would like to have. He'd sent it to her on her birthday or, better yet, sent it to Alice to deliver to her mother. Even if they did fight [illegible] each other he didn't want to [illegible] that birthday—

[illegible] days more and it would be the first of October. Some prospective tenants had been there to look at the house but none of them had [illegible] to come back. Then the office told him that he'd have to make a trip out of town for two weeks or more. [illegible] for two weeks [illegible] of the [illegible]

[illegible] three and [illegible] to town on [illegible] the windows [illegible] toward the home of Holtzer, the realtor, to find [illegible] what the [illegible] was.

"Yes, I got a tenant for you the first of October," the big man told him when he reached the door.

"Would you mind calling up and asking if I might come up and get some clean linen from my trunks?" Bill asked him. "Tell them I won't take but a few minutes, and I'll have a man come for my trunks in the morning."

Holtzer did.

"Go right up," he told Keith, as he hung up the phone. "They said it would be no bother at all."

At the walk in from the street it seemed to Bill that the house looked happy, like it had before Leila went away. He paused and [illegible] then [illegible] on [illegible]

[illegible]

Bill Keith stepped through the [illegible] and was almost knocked from his feet by a charging fuzzy ball that yapped, that turned end for end and then nuzzled him ecstatically. There on the mantle were familiar pictures. Rugs that he knew well were on the floors. The rickety bridge table was in the corner and a piano that he knew was in its accustomed place.

Bill Keith had been pretty much used to [illegible] in those lonely weeks when he'd been there alone. He brushed a hand across his eyes [illegible] then he heard footsteps coming down the stairs.

The [illegible] figure [illegible] away. She had the [illegible] brown hair and [illegible] she wore the [illegible] Then

"Bill—haven't you got anything to tell me?"

It WAS Leila, in the flesh.

"You see," she told him, when she managed to get her head clear from his hungry clinch. "I kept waiting each week for you to say you were sorry. I was bound and determined I'd not give in this time. But you never said anything—just sent me money. But I knew you DID care when you sent the ring, dear—by the way, are you sorry now I'm back?"

"I'm sorry you ever went away or that I ever let you but I'm plain wild to know that you're back with me again."

Then the two of them patted Sandy and together rushed out to the kitchen to chase the clownish Mike out of the cream pitcher.

MAYOR WHALEN MRS. BERNSON DANNY DUGAN PILOT PAYSON MISS MORRISEY MISS CLARK

It was Chelsea Day at the Boston airport yesterday. The event was held under the auspices of the Boston Airport Association. Mayor John J. Whalen of Chelsea took part in the aerial circus and parade program. Here we have Mayor Whalen with Mrs. Dolly Bernson, of Chelsea, the only Jewish aviatrix in Massachusetts. Danny Dugan is also shown. At the right is Pilot Alcott Payson, vice-president of the Skyways Company, who is explaining to Muriel Morrisey and Marie Clark of Chelsea the mechanism of one of the huge planes. Later Pilot Payson took the two girls for a ride.

11 O'SULLIVAN HEIRS TO FIGHT

The contest over the will of Humphrey P. O'Sullivan, Lowell rubber heel manufacturer, will revolve about charges that the millionaire was induced by "fraud, coercion, duress or undue influence" to leave the bulk of his estate to Cardinal O'Connell and Catholic institutions, it was revealed today.

Eleven nieces and nephews of the dead magnate battling for a share in his millions, today filed jury issues in the case in Middlesex Probate court.

The O'Sullivan estate has been variously estimated at between $1,000,000 and $6,000,000.

"TOM" PHELAN TAKES BRIDE

Thomas F. Phelan, veteran Boston newspaper man, and Miss Margaret N. Keenan, member of a well-known Roxbury family, were married at a nuptial mass at St. Patrick's Church, Dudley st., Roxbury.

Rev. John Stenson, pastor of the church, officiated. The best man was Francis R. Keenan, brother of the bride. Her maid of honor was Miss Mary T. Downey, a cousin.

The newlyweds will sail on the steamship St. Louis from New York tomorrow for a six weeks' honeymoon in Ireland, England and France.

The bridegroom has been a member of the editorial staff of the Boston Evening American since it was founded.

Florist Traps Man on Check Charge

A North Station florist florist became suspicious of the message and called in Patrolman Augustine Gannon to talk with his customer. As a result Emile St. Pierre of Montreal, who had ordered $8 worth of roses sent to "Mrs. George Gaylord of Providence," and who paid for them with a $12 check, was arrested on a bad check charge.

He was later given two years in the House of Correction but appealed.

STATE HOUSE CAT FAMILY

Employes of the State House are proud of their beautiful cats and kittens. "Admiral" Jimmy Ward, fireman in that Beacon Hill structure, is overseer of cats. Likes the job. The big cat family has been increased. The special pet cat, Mollie, is mother of five beautiful kittens. So Ward is busier with the cats and not so busy with the fires these hot days. Jimmy is holding "Mollie."

Yale Ball Star Is Seriously Injured

Edgar Warren, 21, of Westwood, captain-elect of the Yale University baseball team for 1932, was in a critical condition at a hospital in Utica, N. Y., as a result of an accident yesterday at Racquette Lake, near Utica.

Warren, vacationing at the lake, fell from an outboard motorboat cutting his left arm. He lost much blood, necessitating a transfusion.

"Jail Is Cooler," So He Gets 3 Months

"Jail is cooler than here," a defendant in East Cambridge court said today, and he was promptly sentenced to three months. He is George B. O'Rourke of Prospect st., Cambridge, father of two children. He was sentenced to six months for non-support of his wife and children, but appealed. A former suspended sentence of three months on a drunkenness charge then was imposed.

FRIEND OF KIDS TAKEN BY DEATH

Children in the vicinity of Bunker Hill st., Charlestown, lost a friend today when Patrolman Joseph J. McAllister of the Charlestown station died in Somerville Hospital.

Patrolman McAllister, who had been ill only ten days of appendicitis, had endeared himself to the children on his route by looking after them at street crossings and buying them candy and ice cream.

A World War veteran, 35 years old, he was a member of Boston Police Post, A. L., having served in the Navy during the war.

He was appointed to the police department in 1926 and was assigned to Division 15. He was unmarried.

The funeral will be Saturday morning from the home of a sister at [illegible] Spring [illegible] Somerville, with requiem high mass at St. Catherine's.

SOUTH SHORE LOVE TRIANGLE IS REVEALED IN BALM SUIT

BOYS AND GIRLS REVEL IN WATERS OF FROG POND

Let the humidity be high. Let the temperature annoy. Let the grownups perspire, but at the Frog Pond on the Boston Common there will be none of these three. What a grand time thousands of Boston children, unable to get to larger watering places, have here. What a big time all the time. (Staff photo.)

FACING OUSTER, FAMILY PLEADS

Facing eviction from their home the mother and father of a family of ten children, the oldest 13, today appealed to the Boston Evening American to aid in obtaining work for the father, unemployed for the past [illegible] months.

The family, that of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Nazzaro, of 4 Harrison [illegible], Dorchester, are receiving $15 weekly in relief from the city, but this is not enough to clothe and feed them.

The family is desperate. The children are without shoes and stockings and other necessary clothing and at times cannot even get such plain food as bread. They are five weeks behind in their rent and unless the father can obtain work immediately, the family will be forced into the street.

PLANS FOR NEW SCHOOL WORK

Plans for the construction of a high school for girls in Dorchester at a cost of $1,000,000 and of an addition to the Boston Latin School for an equal sum were discussed at a conference of Mayor Curley, the members of the school committee, finance commission, board of commissioners of school buildings and board of school superintendents in City Hall today.

Definite action on both matters will probably be taken at a special meeting of the school committee next Monday.

The addition to the Latin school will be located in Pasteur av. on a site adjoining the present school building. Upon completion it will be possible to take 750 students now quartered in portables and buildings in various sections of the city and house the entire school in one group of buildings.

The school for girls will be erected on land owned by the city at Columbia rd. and Washington st., and when completed will permit the transfer of 400 Dorchester and 300 Roxbury girls now attending the annex of the present girls' high school in Massachusetts ave., South End.

CENSUS RULING ELATES MAYOR

Establishment by the Bureau of the Census of a new Boston Metropolitan district embracing 83 cities and towns and a total population of 2,307,89[illegible] today was hailed as gratifying and just by Mayor Curley.

Under the new ruling Boston's rank among the cities of the country will be based upon the population of the new district, according to the announcement.

"The announcement is made at a most auspicious time in view of the interest awakened among shipping interests of the world as to the advisability of utilizing Boston as a terminal for a four-day European steamship service," the Mayor declared.

"It is my sincere wish that the action taken by the federal authorities will shortly be echoed by similar action on the part of the people living within the Greater Boston area."

ALL MEN ALIKE IN LOVE—ALL WOMEN DIFFERENT

By HELEN ROWLAND

SOMETIMES [illegible] revenge that a woman can inflict on an [illegible] is to [illegible] her promise to "love him, [illegible]"

• • •

Just because black and a mourning veil are becoming to her is no reason why a woman should shoot her husband . . . but the idea sometimes gets into her subconsciousness, and affords her a pleasant daydream.

HELEN ROWLAND.

It is almost as difficult to [illegible] a [illegible] to confess his love affairs and flirtations as it is to make a married man keep quiet about his.

The old-fashioned man used to raise the roof, when the muffins were soggy, the beef was tough or the pie-crust was heavy; but, if a modern husband wants to register a complaint, he will have to go around and argue it out with a delicatessen man, probably twice his size.

The reason why a man is more inclined to variety in his love affairs than a woman is because, in love, all men are alike, but all women are different. A man finds variety in many . . . but a woman must [illegible] in one.

A girl never actually realizes that she is in love, until she discovers that she prefers one man's yawns to another man's kisses, and one man's grouches to another man's flattery.

The [illegible] age is fast becoming popular, but it [illegible] when men [illegible] to do a man's [illegible].

The Beauty Box

A HIDDEN away pain is easier to endure than an affliction like ache, that is plain to the eye of the beholder. Women and girls who suffer from blackheads and pimples should seek the help of a reliable medical man who specializes in diseases of the skin. Beauty shops are not qualified to deal with these cases and practically all of them refuse their services, advising the cash customer to see a physician.

Baron Lies About the Pearls

[illegible]

"What are you doing there? [illegible]

[illegible]

"I have come on a wonderful treasure while you were asleep," he said.

"What are you doing with my pearls?" Grusinskaya asked hoarsely. Tell me a lie, tell me a lie, her distraught face implored him. Gaigern went to her and veiled her eyes with his hand. Poor creature, poor little woman.

"It was very rude of me to rummage about among your things," he said. "I was looking for some plaster or a bandage of some kind, and I thought to myself there would be something of the sort in the little dressing case. But it was your treasures I found. I feel like Aladdin in the cave——"

Even her eyes [illegible]

"You silly," he said tenderly, "did you think I had an eye on your pearls?"

"No," lied Grusinskaya. [illegible]

"Besides—I never wear them now," she added with a sigh of relief.

"No—but why not?"

[illegible] and he felt perfectly happy. He opened his mouth and uttered a shout of joy. Grusinskaya began to laugh and as he went over to her she seized hold of his hands and kissed them. There was something genuine as well as playful in this submissive gratitude.

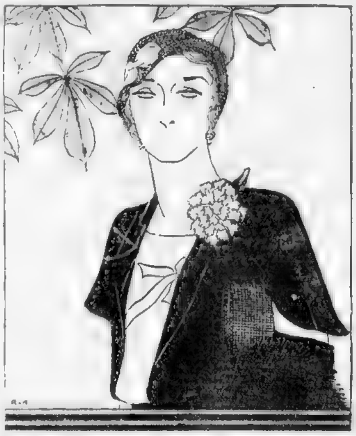
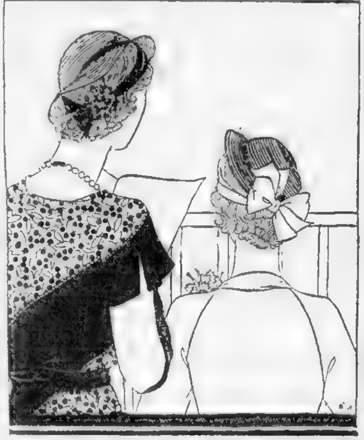
"Amazone" Type Hat

SKETCHED IN PARIS



The Princess Agha-Khan (or Begum Agha-Khan, as she is sometimes called) wears a small, rough straw hat of the Eugenie "amazone" type in black, with a flat bow of white "beau d'ange" ribbon.



Two tip-tilted, little "marquise" hats, recently seen at the races, are sketched.

Women in the Pulpit---And Then the Wedding Bells

— By WINIFRED BLACK — —

CAN A WOMAN be a minister and [illegible] a woman? [illegible] England [illegible]

[illegible]

Winifred Black

[illegible] But a woman—nothing of the [illegible]

[illegible] she's a person someone you can talk things over with, someone you can trust, someone who cares something [illegible] as a human being or [illegible] just a wife.

No matter how clever she is or how good she is or how successful [illegible] there's always somebody standing behind her and that somebody has to be in on every bargain and on every friendship and on every agreement. Yes and on every committee.

Mary may think the world of you. You may have known Mary since you both wore blue sashes and wide hats to the Sunday school picnic. But you tell Mary your heart's dearest secret and she'll run right home and tell John all about it. And if she doesn't run right home and tell John all about it, John's cross and John's jealous, and John says she thinks more of her friends than she does of him.

Mary [illegible] a [illegible] right. But if [illegible] wrong [illegible] wrong too. She'll side with him, no matter how wrong he is. She'll defend him if he's seven times a fool—or she'll leave him and be just plain Mary again.

Now John isn't like that.

John is John—always and forever.

He has his own friends, his own life, his own business, his own interests, and if Mary knows what's good for her, she lets John have the other side of his life entirely to himself.

Mary is quite willing sometimes she's even proud to be Mary-John, but John is never willing to be known as John-Mary, not [illegible], John.

Who wants a preacher to preach a funeral sermon when she's really wondering how little Tommy's throat is or whether little Jane has passed her arithmetic test or not?

Impersonal work is for impersonal people, yes, I think they're quite right over in England to make marriage a resignation from the pulpit.

When the preacher is a woman!

Canning by Cold Pack Method

By MARTHA LEE.

TOMES COULD be, and have been, written on cold pack methods of canning foods, but the process can be boiled down quite concisely into six fundamental rules, viz:

Martha Lee

1. Pack the prepared food into clean, tested jars. It is not necessary to sterilize the jars before the food is packed into them when this method of canning is used. If a firm pack is desired, fill to within ½ to ¼ inch from the top.

2. For vegetables add 1 tsp. of salt to each quart and fill the jars with boiling water. To fruits of average sweetness add hot syrup made of equal parts of sugar and water to within ¼ to ½ inch from the top.

3. Place the rubber and cover. If the screw top style of jar is used, screw only the strength of the thumb and little finger in partially sealing cover. If the clamp style is used, adjust only the upper clamp.

4. If ordinary utensils are used, completely cover the jars with hot water. When the vapo-seal cooker is used the food can be processed in two or three inches of water. Place the cover and after steam is seen escaping at the valve, reduce the flame and continue to process in steam. Allow the same time for this method as for processing in boiling water. (See time table.) In each case do not count time until the water boils. Adjust heat so the boiling continues.

5. Remove the jars from the processing kettle and complete a perfect seal.

Following is the time table for Cold Pack canning processing in water bath 212 deg. Fruit: Apples, 20 minutes; apricots, 20; blackberries, 16; dewberries, 16; huckleberries, 16; logan berries, 16; raspberries, 16; cherries, 20; currants, 20; peaches, 20; pears, 20; pineapple, 30; plums, 16; rhubarb, 16; strawberries, 16; tomatoes, 30.

Vegetables: Asparagus, 2 hours; string beans, 2 to 3 hours; lima beans, 3 hours; corn, 3 hours; greens, 2 hours; carrots, [illegible] hours; cauliflower, 1 hour; peas, [illegible] hours; sweet peppers, 1 hour; vegetable soup, 2 hours.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

DEVILLED CRAB MEAT

- 1 large can crab meat
- Juice ½ lemon
- 3 tbsps. butter
- 1 tbsp. chopped onion
- 3 tbsps. flour
- 1 tsp. salt
- ¼ tsp. paprika
- Few gratings of nutmeg
- 1½ cups milk
- 1 egg
- ½ tsp. mustard

Separate crab meat in flakes and season with lemon juice. Melt butter, add onion and cook three minutes. Then add flour mixed with seasoning and stir until well blended, add milk and stir until smooth. Add crab meat and well beaten egg. Serve on toast in patty shells, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and brown in oven. Lobster may be prepared the same way.—Mary F. Bailey, 169 Oak st., Wakefield.

A DIVISION OF NATIONAL DAIRY

By ANTHONY ABBOT

"I WAS ILL. I had to go away. He made me go away," continued Bessie Struber.

"Yes. And where did you go?"

"I went West."

"Where?"

"I visited some friends in Denver."

"What were their names?"

"The Colbys. Clara was a schoolgirl friend of mine. She very kindly let me stay with them—she and her husband, Mr. Colby."

"How long were you there?"

"Three or four months."

"Did you have a doctor?"

"Why, yes."

"What did he say was the matter with you?"

"I had a complete nervous breakdown, Mr. Colt. I had been working too hard—at the church."

Colt rose from the divan and walked slowly toward her.

"I have no wish to hurt you," he said with deep earnestness. "But all this does have a bearing on the case."

"Why should it have?"

"Didn't you hate Timothy Beazley?"

"No!"

"I know that you spied on their letters. You wrote to Chadwick and informed on the lovers. You wrote a threatening letter to Evelyn Saunders. Why?" he brooded. "You've got to answer those questions."

"I can't. I don't know what you mean!"

"We know that you did these things. We have your finger prints on the very jar of paste you used to seal up the letters from the hymn book rack, after you opened them. More than that, I can show you your own fingerprints in the dust of that closet there."

Bessie Struber gave a cry as Colt sprang to his feet and pulled open the door of the closet where he had said someone had lurked like a tiger waiting for its prey.

"God have mercy on me," she cried. "Take me away. Let me alone."

Colt leaned over her, and seized her hands.

"You know you are holding something back," he charged. "Tell us the truth—your own religion teaches you to do that."

"No—no—no."

"What is making you keep silent?"

"No—I will say nothing. You may torture me—I will not tell anything."

Sobbing, she pulled her hands away from him and hid her face. Colt sat very quiet for a moment, and then began speaking in a low, intense tone.

"When you went away for a rest cure you didn't go to Denver. You went to Norfolk."

Her sobbing stopped instantly. I saw that she was peering at him through her fingers like some wounded thing, expecting a death blow.

"You must not lie to me any more," said Colt. "I know too much. Since this case started, my men have been watching you, Miss Struber. I know why you [illegible]. I know why you are wearing clothes like these when you used to dress so becomingly. It is because you are spending your money on something else."

"Don't tell anybody," she pleaded. "Please don't tell anybody! It wouldn't be fair. I have worked so hard. I have tried and tried."

"You still tell me you didn't hate Beazeley?"

"No, I tell you—stop torturing me—no—no—no—"

"Not even after he tried to kill you?" cried Colt, his voice snapping like a whip.

"Why do you say that?" she cried. "What do you mean?"

Colt hurried toward her and put his hands on her shoulders.

"Beazeley gave you medicine. You did not take it. But you found out it was poison."

"God help me!" she cried, falling back into the chair. But at that desperate moment Colt could not permit her to give way to weakness. Again he was close to her, holding her hands, forcing her to look at him.

"Don't you see I don't want to torture you, child?" he pleaded. "But you must not set yourself against the law. Once and for all, now—will you tell me what you know about this case."

"I won't—I can't—I'll die first!"

Colt sprang to his feet. The penitent look he cast upon Dougherty and me was infinitely tragic. It was as if he were asking pardon of his Maker for what he was then forced to do.

Resolutely he strode to the door, opened it and called softly to Hutchinson.

"Miss Struber," he said, "I shall have to ask you to look at this door."

The distrait creature obeyed him. She looked up in time to see a woman there—a woman who held by the hand a pretty, golden-haired little boy. The child was about four years old, and he was clinging close to the skirt of his companion.

Sleepily he rubbed his eyes and looked up at Colt in drowsy bewilderment; he saw no one else in the room. Almost before any of us knew what he was doing, Colt slammed shut the door again just as Bessie Struber sprang forward like a tigress. She flung herself madly upon Thatcher Colt, who barred her way—she was moaning and tearing to get at the door.

"What are you trying to do to my baby?" she cried.

Don't Fear for Hubby, Says Miss Fairfax

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My plans were all made for a vacation when I found quite by accident that my husband—instead of missing me as he said he would, was making arrangements for a good time. There were to be men, parties, etc. When the party who told me saw that I knew nothing about it she would say no more. Evidently, she thought I was in on it. What would you do?

YOUNG WIFE.

Dear Wife: You appear to be having a happy life with your husband. I would not entertain fears about him. I am sure he is able to take care of himself and will not do anything that will be distasteful to you. Certainly, if he had such a thing in mind, he would be more secretive about it. At all events, your husband may set your mind entirely at rest by telling you everything about it. Give him a chance to do so.

FANNING

—By GEORGE UNDERWOOD—

Tribe Back Home.
Robbie on Trail.
His Scalp Thins.
Baseball Shindy.
A Free-for-All.
Let's All Get in!

C'MON! LET'S KILL A FEW UMPIRES!

Will our Braves stay in second division, or fall even still further down?
Robbie's scalp is scarcely worth lifting, his locks have become scant and thin
If scalping knife circles his bald dome, 'twill take off little but skin,
But his paunch is as ample as ever, and we don't mind telling you
If Our Injuns only were cannibals, he'd make a wonderful stew!

Yeah, Uncle Robbie is here. Corpulent, jolly Uncle Robbie and em theah Robins. Babe Herman, the fence buster and high ball [illegible]; Dazzy Vance, with the ball that can give a thunderbolt a head start; Lefty "Faugh-a Ballagh" O'Doul, the Harp That Once Through Tara's Hall; Del Bissonette, the Maine apple grower; Senors Lopez and Luque, the Castilian battery, giant Ernie Lombardi, the Walloping Wop with the schnozzola that makes Jimmy Durante turn green with envy—all, all are here. And here for one of the grandest little free for-alls that ever warmed the cockles of your heart.

Free-for-alls are becoming quite de rigeur in our best circles particularly at Braves Field. Consider DeGlane and Sonnenberg in the Grapple of the Century. M'seu Henri and Gus the Goat put up a free-for-all that would have made a shindy in a Shawanaga lumber camp seem like a meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society. And when the drives came down we've seen some scraps that were pippins. Been in 'em, too. Those were the days!

When the drive comes down! When the drive comes down!
'Tis then we get our money, lads, 'tis then we own the town!
Oh, the gutters run with whiskey, when the Shanty Boys so frisky,
Stick their boot caulks in the sidewalks, when the Drive comes down!"

Avaunt with the log rasslers and back to the apple mashers and the baseball free for-alls. When those good fellows of the Braves and the Robins get together there's always a free-for-all. Boston is Brooklyn's pain in the side or tack in the pants. That merry go round among the Braves, Robins and Giants makes us dizzy. The Braves murder the Robins, the Robins kick the Giants around like a Missouri hound, and the Giants massacre the Braves.

This year Boston has kept Brooklyn out of the pennant race. Brooklyn has kept the Giants out of first place and the Giants have barred the Braves from the first division. What could be sweeter?

That National League free-for-all is getting sweeter and sweeter just like our own sweetie. (Gee, Babe I oughta get an extra piece of pie for supper tonight for that!) True, the Cards seem to be running away with the National League bunting, just like the Athletics are making a one-team race in the American. But just look at the mad scrambles back of the Cards. Just-look-at-it! Talk about your knock-down and drag-outs! Whoopee! It's such a perfectly lovely scrap it makes us all want to get in it!

PIRATES

Whoopee! Hey There, Fellers! Why keep it just a private scrap?
'Tis a perfectly lovely shindy! Look at 'em wallop and clout'—
Oh, Mister! Please let us in it! It's a crime to have to stay out!

Back of the Cards the Giants, Cubs, Robins, Braves and the Pirates are battling so fiercely it makes you think it's the Democratic National Convention. There is no love lost among that gang, brother. That's just what the National League shindy is, Clarence—a gang war! Giants, Cubs, Robins, Braves and Pirates are out to erase each other from the map.

It looks as if the Cubs and the Giants would retain their first division places in the baseball sun. But fourth place in the National League Free-for-All—goodness knows who is going to grab that! Braves, Robins and now the Pirates, who have been coming like a runaway Missouri cyclone, are locked in a death grapple. The see saw race is just at the warmest now. Let's go out to the Wigwam and kill a few Robins and umpires!

Moynahan Wins Rocky Point Mile

Rocky Point, R. I., Aug. 6—Brendon Moynahan of the B. A. A. won the mile run, the feature attraction of the 61st annual Scottish games conducted by the Providence Caledonian Society yesterday, in which the lion's share of honors went to Massachusetts athletes.

Joe Healey, another B. A. A. athlete, was defeated in the 100-yard dash but came back strong to win the 220. Healey, present N. E. A. A. U. century title holder was defeated in the 100 by Zygie Janiak of New Bedford.

Louise Stokes of the Onteora Club won the 100-yard dash for women and would have captured first place honors in the 220 but for a poor start. She finished two yards behind Catherine Carew of Medford, the winner.

Rockwells Top Field in Father-Son Golf

The Rockwell family of the Monoosnock Club in Leominster dominated a record-breaking field of 140 pairs in the first day of the annual Winchester father and son tournament yesterday.

Father Alfred C. Rockwell, [illegible] present [illegible] hand of his [illegible] club, teamed with 26-year-old Dick, former Dartmouth links captain, in the morning to produce an 80, [illegible] was the best score of the opening day by two strokes.

Then in the afternoon the doughty Mr. Rockwell took on [illegible] Robert, and they [illegible] match [illegible] way to an 82 [illegible] them a tie for second [illegible] and a deadlock for first [illegible] with a mark of 68 set up by Rockwell and Dick in the morning.

So the elder Rockwell completed his [illegible] but happy day's task with a combined net of 136 to give him a splendid opportunity to sit back and watch the other fathers with at least two golfing sons battle for the special award which he took last year with a total of 140.

Next to the [illegible] golf [illegible] by the Rockwells the leading feature of the colorful opening day was the number of entrants. The [illegible] of 140 [illegible] last year's mark for the first day by 12 pairs.

[illegible] pairs of the record in 1929 when the popular event [illegible] single day. [illegible] the [illegible] total of [illegible] making it a two-day holiday and with 75 teams already holding starting times for today, there looms the necessity of adding still another day in the near future.

Dick is the better known amateur of the Rockwell sons, yet it was the father who supplied the round and it was Bob who took up [illegible] punch of the morning [illegible] when dad got a [illegible] and after struggling over 27 holes at the long Winchester layout.

Mitchell Medalist in Public Links Golf

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

We have noted that the back swing with your driver requires sufficient time for the actions which the club must go through. By now you doubtless have a better grasp of it. I mention to keep the action rather slow, but slow is not the word. It is not slow in the sense that you retard it. It is slow enough to be smooth, natural. Toward the top, indeed it gathers considerable speed winding you up tight. Now the return. You will spoil everything if you now get hasty. You must not jump or leap forward. The same principle of oily smoothness is here required. Start easily again working your left hand down toward that right trousers pocket, keep your right leg stiff and let the club swing itself. About all you do is hang onto it. Avoid a thought of socking the ball because anxiety to hit will stiffen your arms and wrists and prevent the clubhead from hitting. Pull your left arm easily and smoothly to the ball, into it, through it and far out into the line.

Boston Tigers Lose for Second Time

The Somerville City Club set down the Boston Tigers, second half leaders in the Hub Twi League, for the second time in successive nights by winning 11 to 7 last evening at new Lincoln Park. [illegible] Clancy's homer in the second with Curtin on base put Somerville in the lead. Barry St. George featured with his batting and fielding. [illegible] the Tigers' second sacker, made one of the longest homers in the league when he slapped it over the left center field fence, clearing the barrier by nearly 50 feet.

THE BODY SCISSORS

Joe Stecher made the body scissors famous. But Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg and other grapplers use the hold almost as effectively. Here you see DYNAMITE GUS SONNENBERG, former world's heavyweight champion, illustrating the hold with JACK ALBRIGHT as the goat for Gus the Goat.

By GUS SONNENBERG
AS TOLD TO GEORGE GRIMM
LESSON NO. 17

The body scissors, as used by Joe Stecher, former world's heavyweight champion, is a punishing hold that if properly applied will invariably result in a fall.

The scissors is often obtained by [illegible] a man when on his hands and knees, so that he will slip between your legs when parted, one resting on the floor.

Force the opponent on his back and extend your upper leg across his stomach, grapevining your feet so that he cannot force them apart. Squeeze his stomach between your legs.

With your other hand prevent him from raising one shoulder off the mat by bracing himself with his near hand.

By squeezing the opponent securely between your legs you can tire and cause him considerable pain. More often than not he will give up.

What the Stars Did

By the Associated Press.

Jim Bottomley, Cardinals—Hit double, triple and six singles in double-header against Pittsburgh.

Larry French, Pirates—Held Cards scoreless last nine innings to beat Flint Rhem in 12-inning duel, 5 to 4.

Vincent Barton, Cubs—His single in ninth scored Blair with run that beat the Reds, 3 to 2.

Fred Heimach, Robins—Gave Giants seven hits and held them scoreless last eight innings to win, 6 to 2.

Wally Berger, Braves—His home run with two on helped "Socks" Seibold beat the Phils, 6 to 3.

Medalist Defeated in Public Links Play

Keller Club, St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 6 (AP)—Charles Ferrera, San Francisco, provided the first round of the national public links championship with an upset today, eliminating the medalist, Dave Mitchell, Indianapolis, by the decisive margin of 4 and 3.

An out-and-out "dark horse" from Indianapolis, Mitchell, an inspector of popcorn machines, was the medalist of the 32 survivors.

CAN BRITANNIA MATCH OUR FAIR BOSTON LASS?

Fair MARJORIE MORRILL of Dedham will be among the six American women who will strive to repel their British sisters in the big match for the Wightman Cup at Forest Hills, Long Island, tomorrow and Saturday. She has won her place in the tennis sun along with Helen Wills Moody, Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, Helen Jacobs, Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper and Sarah Palfrey. Win or loose we doubt if Britannia can match our fair Boston lass. Isn't she beauty and grace personified—

Sarah Palfrey, local player, who was chosen as a member of the American team to succeed Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup of Wilmington, Del., who withdrew on account of illness, was selected as the partner of Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, donor of the cup and team captain, for the second American doubles team. Mrs. Moody and Mrs. Harper make up the first American combination.

M'GUIRK TO COACH AT MALDEN

Warren McGuirk, former Boston College football captain and All-American tackle, today was named as successor to the late Edmund Goodreau as Malden High School head sports coach.

McGuirk also will teach at the high school, in the science department.

The former B. C. athlete acted as assistant football coach at Malden working with the line, for the past two years. During this time he developed some notable school forwards. His work was of marked importance in developing the great Malden high team of two seasons back.

McGuirk was offered the Malden position several days ago, following the funeral of Coach Goodreau, who died, following a brief illness, the victim of infantile paralysis.

The new coach could not accept the offer, however, until Boston College authorities graciously had waived their agreement with McGuirk, who was to have coached the Boston College linemen this fall. McGuirk had been named to the B. C. post to succeed John McManmon, who resigned at the Heights in order to devote more time to business.

fourth tee but played a fine out and won the hole after Dolan had approached weakly and then followed up that slip with three putts.

Batchelder whaled home a beautiful second shot at the fifth, six feet beyond the cup. Dolan was trapped with his second and after he had missed his par four, Batchelder canned his third birdie to go three up.

Batchelder Misses Short Putt at the Seventh

After a beautiful recovery from a sliced iron at the seventh, Batchelder missed a short putt and Dolan won the hole with a regulation three.

They both got their fours at the eighth and then Batchelder holed a six-footer for a half at the ninth where he was short in two.

Batchelder got a great half at the 10th, where his tee shot hit a tree and with his opponent on in two and he well short of the green, the Salem player made his third dead to the pin, and after Dolan had missed a six-footer for a birdie, Batchelder dropped his putt for a half.

Going to the 11th, Dolan hooked badly from the tee and his second left him in the rough as his ball hit two trees. Playing a spoon for his third shot, Dolan made a beautiful recovery and was home in four, but he missed his putt and lost the hole to Batchelder's regulation five.

Batchelder Makes Great Shot From the Rough

Batchelder made a great bid for a deuce from back of the 12th green, his ball sliding about a foot beyond the cup and then Dolan ran in a five-footer for a deuce and a win. A wonderful shot from the edge of the rough followed by a beautiful putt for a birdie three, gave Batchelder a win at the 13th, but at the next hole the Salemite was trapped with his first and third shot and over the green in front of a tree in 4.

Dolan was also trapped from the tee and his out trickled into another hazard from where he got home with a beautiful iron and won the hole with a five.

They were both trapped going to the 15th but Batchelder's recovery left him only a five footer while Dolan's out just made the edge of the green from where he made a great try for his four, but missed and then Batchelder went down with one putt for a win.

A weak chip shot from the edge of the 16th green followed by an off-line putt dropped Dolan to four down, for Batchelder got a regulation three. Batchelder hit right down the middle from the 17th tee. Dolan tried to carry the Vardon trap and got into trouble.

Dolan's second went in the woods, from where he played out safe and wound up with a seven, losing to a par four.

Batchelder and Dolan played their best shots of the round at the 18th hole, where Dolan ironed his way home in two to about six feet from the cup, and then Batchelder stepped up and hit the pin with a No. 4 iron, his ball stopping three feet short of the cup.

Dolan dropped a six-footer for a birdie three, but Batchelder rimmed the cup and lost the hole.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

Henry Lamar, who can lick 90 per cent of our heavyweights without much trouble, dropped in to hello Mr. Boston.

"I now weigh 196 pounds," said Lamar. "For the past year I have been packing on weight and now can hold my own with most of the big fellows in the matter of poundage. At the time I fought Jim Maloney, I couldn't get above 180 pounds.

Mr. Boston

"I would like to battle Maloney again. I feel I could defeat him.

"I was matched to meet Tuffy Griffith of Chicago at Braddock, Pa., this week, but the show was called off. Maybe I'll get the shot at Griffith in a Chicago ring.

"Since Ernie Schaaf has been under the management of Johnny Buckley, I have been working with the former sailor. Schaaf is a two-fisted scrapper and is always moving forward when in the ring. I regret we are in the same stable as I would like to toss punches at Schaaf under fire.

"Just now I'm aiming my fire at Griffith and Maloney. All a promoter has to do is to sign up either of these big fellows and he won't have to look for me to get me to put my signature on the dotted line."

Lamar Has Developed Much Like Tunney

"Lamar," said Mr. Boston, "has packed on weight and developed much like Gene Tunney. For years Tunney hung around 180 pounds, then started to put on weight.

"Lamar, like Tunney, is a first class boxer. He has also developed his hitting power. I would like to see Henry in there with one of the stand out men in the heavyweight class. You would see a first class scrap."

Schaaf Anxious to Keep Busy in Ring

Ernie Schaaf keeps punching the bag daily at Jim Foland's Gym. Just now Ernie is getting ready for his 10-round tussle with Angus Snyder, Kansas heavyweight, which will take place at the Boston Garden on next Tuesday night.

"Schaaf is one heavyweight who believes in keeping in action as much as possible," said Mr. Boston. "After he knocked out Maloney for the first time, he stepped into Brooklyn and kayoed Jack Gagnon. A few nights later he stopped a third rater at West Springfield. Schaaf believes it is more profitable to keep in shape by boxing mediocre opposition than it is to pay sparring partners to stop his punches in the ring.

Constant boxing also kept Ernie on edge so that he was at his peak when he met Maloney for the second time. The result was another Schaaf knockout.

"Johnny Dundee, when at his best, always engaged in two or three minor bouts before he stepped to bat in a major effort. This program sent him into the ring in good condition when he collided with the first-class opposition. It also tended to increase the Dundee bank roll.

"Schaaf never under rates an opponent. He will be in as good shape when he collides with Snyder next Tuesday night as he was for his skirmishes with Maloney. Heavyweight contenders begin to slip when they get an idea they don't have to train rigidly for their matches. Schaaf doesn't intend to make this mistake."

Going to say farewell? "UNCLE" WILBERT ROBINSON, manager of the Brooklyn Robins is reported as going to quit at the end of the season. "Robby" was a great player and still is a great pilot. The game he honored so long will sorely miss the genial master.

Who said it's hot? Not ANGUS SNYDER, the walloping Kansan who is training here for his fight with Ernie Schaaf, next week. Boston, says Angus is nice and cool like. So in between training rounds he wraps himself in blanket and towel to keep warm.

[illegible] Aug. 6—Munasco, Freddie Brookes's old boat showed up with a new skipper for the first time this year and Miss Laselle at the helm sailed away from the Wee Scots in her first race, winning handily in the mid-week races of the New Bedford Yacht Club, at South Dartmouth.

Old Pals Meet in Ring

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

Elsewhere on these pages you will read an account of the Maxie Rosenbloom-Jimmy Slattery bout at Brooklyn last night for the light heavyweight championship. Don't believe it.

Here is the authentic account, filed by our trained cuckoo, who reports all queer things for the department.

"Why Jimmy! Aren't you Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo whom I met somewhere about ten years ago?"

"Well, well, well. If it isn't my old pal, Maxie Rosenbloom. Well, well, well."

ROUND TWO—Pair fall into clinch.

"Well, Jimmy, this is our seventh meeting. It's good to see you again. What was the big idea of someone telling me that I was going to fight someone? I guess our friends just wanted to bring us together again."

"Yes, Maxie, I guess that's what it is. I thought I was going to have to fight someone, too. Well, well."

ROUND FIFTEEN—The pair embrace.

"Hope to see you again, Jimmy."

Norfolk Open Golf Tourney on Today

Norfolk's three-day open tournament starts this morning bright and early, with almost $500 in prizes awaiting the ones who give par a close battle. In addition, there is a special prize for the longest drive during the three days.

Alvah Rydstrom, Norfolk president, reports a big entry list, including a goodly number of the club's own stars. The tournament will come to a finish Saturday afternoon.

AN UNUSUAL EXPERIENCE

written by the first EYE-WITNESS

The other day I visited the distributing offices of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures and was a guest in the projection room at the first showing of "SPORTING BLOOD" a new photoplay. I was frankly a bit skeptical of the theme of the picture as I am naturally familiar with all styles of screen stories. I've seen gangster pictures and war pictures and sex pictures - plenty of them. And now I was to see a picture called "SPORTING BLOOD". I wasn't excited. But - imagine my amazement when as the story unfolded I realized I was seeing one of the greatest pictures of al time! A true epic, not in the advertising sense, but in the legitimate sense - a story full of the humanity of real experience! "SPORTING BLOOD" is about horses but it can hardly be classified as such. Its story is so much more thrilling and its appeal so infinitely greater that you must classify it in the group of truly great pictures with universal appeal like Ben Hur or The Big Parade. Here's a film that rings true. When a picture reveals life with all its laughter and its tears - its loves and its hates - when it convinces you by its deep sincerity - it becomes a truly great film and stands head and shoulders above its contemporaries. It was an unusual experience seeing this great NEW IDEA in talking pictures. I arranged to put it in my theatre immediately at the cost of unusual playing terms because I think that every one of my patrons should see it.

Man About Town

By AL DUFFY

HIGH DIPLOMACY

It very easily might have become a major incident—you know, one of those seemingly trivial events like the shooting of a crown prince in a musical comedy Balkan country, that many times lead to a tragedy. But good old-fashioned Boston quick-wittedness averted it. Here's what happened.

Everything was going very nicely at one of our swankiest roof gardens the other night when suddenly a hush fell over everyone. (And incidentally, if you've never seen a hush fall over anyone you've missed half your life.) People sitting at tables fringing the dance floor turned to stare. Couples dancing happily to the lilting strains of "You Forgot Your Gloves" looked and were so amazed that they fell out of step. So everything seems to be falling in this story.)

What was the cause of all the commotion? You'll never guess. Two girls were dancing together. Two very nice girls too. Well dressed, young and both of them very pretty. And they danced quite well together.

Well, for a minute or so things looked pretty black. The head waiter looked at his assistant, the assistant stared back pretty helplessly at his boss and there you were. What to do?

Then it was that that old fashioned Boston quick-wittedness I was telling you about came into the picture. The band leader sensed that something was wrong, so he turned around and took in the situation in a jiffy. He turned back to the band, said something to the boys and in a moment the orchestra was playing "Just a Gigolo."

The girls took the hint and sat down, the dancers resumed their rhythm, the folks at the tables went back to their glasses and all was well with the world again.

But it was a pretty close call, let me tell you.

SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

George Bancroft, who left Boston and hot-footed it back to Hollywood the minute he had finished the outdoor sequences of his newest picture, "Rich Man's Folly," at the Quincy shipyards, ran up against that old devil red tape when he got back to Sunny California . . . It seems that the studio executives aren't exactly satisfied with the story so they have called a halt in shooting the picture and are holding many conferences to decide just what should be done about it . . . Meanwhile the company is standing around waiting to go ahead on the picture . . . Al Trahan, "the king's jester," who has been vacationing with his mother at New Bedford, will call it a holiday and open his winter season in Philadelphia on September 4 . . . Jim Londos, the big wrestling man, will make his first dip into vaudeville on October 9 for the tidy sum of $5000 a week . . . Jack Oakie is getting a reputation for being a bad boy at the parties that they throw in Hollywood . . . The cast of "Band Wagon" and the "Third Little Show" are feuding . . . "Sunny Side Up," the Janet Gaynor-Charlie Farrell talkie that was such a tremendous success when it was first released, was revived this week at Roxy's in New York, the scene of its first triumph, and it turned out to be the season's biggest flop . . . Which only goes to prove something or other . . . Fully 50 per cent of the newspapermen who have gone out to Hollywood as writers under three months contract have failed to click . . . Most of them are staying out on the coast, however, probably unwilling to return and face the "I-told-you-so" of their pals in the East . . . Edward G. Robinson, who made his biggest hit in "Little Caesar" and "Smart Money," opened a personal appearance in St. Louis this week, but the theatregoers didn't seem to get very excited about it . . . As a result the RKO moguls are doing a lot of heavy thinking, for they have a contract guaranteeing him [illegible] a week during the tour.

POLITICS
Notes and Gossip About People You Know

Rep. John J. Concannon of Ward 16, Dorchester, has no aspirations for the city council as reported recently. He says so himself and adds:

"The people of Ward 16 are capable of choosing their own officials without interference by me in a contest in which I have no place. I am not a candidate for city council and am pleased with the privilege of serving the people in the legislature."

O'LEARY MAY GET POST

Telephone Dividend Change Not Planned

As stated here yesterday, no change in American Telephone's dividend has been discussed, and the current $9 a share is being better than earned. One fairly well-informed market letter writer declares selling has come from liquidation of a large estate. The George F. Baker estate is the largest holder, and the next largest is said to be the Kennedy estate of Boston. Support was evident most of today's session.

General Motors Is Sold Higher

General Motors was sold somewhat higher during much of today's trading, responding feebly to the expected declaration of its regular dividend announced after the market's close yesterday. Chrysler fluctuated narrowly, with the pool said to be awaiting more propitious market action.

Woolworth Sponsors Waiting On Market

Bull pool in Woolworth, aided by latest sales report showing moderate expansion over a year ago, is awaiting encouragement from general list to resume aggressive operations. The stock has been notably firm during recent general market irregularity.

Johns Manville Dividend Policy

Belief that a banking policy which is credited with having [illegible] the size of the U. S. Steel dividend reduction will dominate the next meeting of Johns Manville directors accounts for persistent pressure against the stock. Quarterly dividend payable in September has already been voted, notwithstanding that first half net failed to cover the period's full dividend requirements.

Dairy Products Statement Near

Semi-annual report of National Dairy Products, due shortly, is expected to show the half year's dividend earned by a satisfactory margin. This showing would be considered exceptional in view of preliminary estimates pointing to a drop of between 10 and 15 per cent in net profits for the six months, compared with a year ago.

In 1930 the cash dividend of $2 a share was covered twice over, but these payments have since been increased to $2.60 a share annually in lieu of the discontinuance of extra dividends payable in stock. Directors of the company are scheduled to meet for dividend action within the next day or two. No [illegible] is anticipated.

At June 30 the net current assets of the company were large enough to cover the funded debt, purchase [illegible] obligations and preferred stock of subsidiary company, with [illegible] equal to about $4.40 a share left for the common stock.

Endicott Johnson Economies Beneficial

Economies have been beneficial to Endicott Johnson results for the first half year, [illegible] indicate. Although there was a decrease of 6 per cent in the volume of business, the net profit showed a gain of 8.3 per cent. Apparently the management has secured absolute control over costs, etc., and that will be to the advantage of the company in the immediate future.

Mack Truck Second Quarter Earnings

Earnings of Mack Trucks for the second quarter were below predictions which were heard in Wall Street only a day or two ago. They amounted to 16 cents a share. The estimates had been that the company would be able to show a sufficient profit in the period to offset the deficit recorded in the first three months of the year. However, there was a moderate net loss for the half year.

Penney Increases Profit Margin

J. C. Penney is another organization which has made an excellent showing through economies. During the first six months there was a drop of 10.5 per cent in the sales of the company, but the profit margin was increased to 5.4 per cent, compared with only 4 per cent in the same period of last year and with 4.5 per cent in all of 1930. Operating efficiency has improved substantially. This is reflected by the fact that there was a gain of 1[illegible] per cent in net profit in the first half of this year.

Figures on Output of Autos Are Given

National Automobile Chamber of Commerce estimates July automobile production in the United States and Canada at 221,485 units, compared with 256,297 in June and 275,121 in July, 1930. Output in the first seven months of 1931 was 1,855,923 cars and trucks, against 2,584,956 in the same period of 1930.

TRADING LIGHT IN BOSTON MARKET

Trading was light and prices were slightly lower on the Boston Stock Exchange today.

Boston Elevated issues were firm with the common up ¼.

Atchison lost 1½, United Fruit sagged ⅞ and Kreuger & Toll was off ⅛. Brown & Co. preferred, Hygrade Lamp and American & British preferred were a point lower. American Telephone showed a fractional loss.

New England Telephone rose 1½. General Electric and Edison were fractionally higher.

Few securities in the local market have given a better account marketwise than First National Stores. The common at its current price of 57⅞ is less than a point below the 1931 high, and 17 points above the year's low.

Dollar Sales for Kresge Are Lower

July Sales of S. S. Kresge Co. showed decline to $10,721,890 from $10,882,426 reported for the like month of 1930. Sales for the first seven months this year aggregated $77,960,492 compared with $78,340,038 for the like period of last year. Owing to decrease in commodity prices, tonnage volume sales were evidently larger.

Copper Surplus to Have Big Increase

Metal and Mineral Markets prophesies another large increase in refined copper stocks will be shown as of July 31, perhaps 30,000 tons, owing to decreased shipments without any appreciable reduction in output.

Curb Leaders Sell Off to New Lows

New York, Aug. 6—Bearish professionals inaugurated a fresh selling campaign in the closing half of today's curb session, and were successful in forcing leading stocks to new low ground on the decline. Decline of Cities Service to 9⅛ represented the lowest level which this issue has ever hit since listing on the curb. General Gas & Electric Convertible preferred B, sold off 3⅛ points.

Rail Liens Lower in Big Bond Mart

New York, Aug. 6—The bond market continued to decline irregularly today. The downward price trend was more marked in some groups than in others. Railroad obligations were leaders in this respect. Second grade rails yielded to the selling pressure readily but recessions occurred also among high grade and gilt edge issues.

PRICES MIXED AT THE CLOSE IN WALL ST.

New York, Aug. 6—The stock market in Wall St. was again under light selling pressure during most of today's sluggish session, but some of the pivotal issues developed resistance to the downward drift, and closed with small gains.

Sterling exchange recovered moderately, after yesterday's slump, and the London and Paris markets were steady to firm.

SALES UNDER MILLIONS.

The local market, however, lacked important impetus in any direction, and the turnover was gain well below a million shares. Moderate losses predominated at the finish.

Shares closing fractionally higher included U. S. Steel, American Can, Bethlehem and Anaconda, while Allied Chemical and Case closed a point higher.

American Telephone, under bear pressure yesterday, recovered 1½ points on quieting of the bearish gossip over the dividend.

Auburn dropped more than nine points, causing some sympathetic selling of motor and accessory issues generally, and closed but moderately above the lowest.

Rails were again under pressure, New York Central selling off more than a point to a 10-year low.

Miscellaneous issues losing a point or two, net, included Canadian Pacific, Consolidated Gas, American Water Works, duPont, Eastman, Northern Pacific, Loews, Fox and Safeway. Reading, Shell Union preferred and Western Union lost to 4 points.

U. S. STEEL ORDERS

Brokerage circles had had rumors of a decrease in U. S. Steel's tonnage, but Dow, Jones declared today it would show little change and might even have a slight increase.

While the dog days drag along in general business, there are a few hopeful signs of preparations for autumn trade. There had been a considerable influx of buyers into the New York wholesale market, and one estimate places the current number at 10 per cent above those in town a year ago. Buying, according to most reports, is proceeding rather cautiously.

Retail sales reports of chain organizations continue satisfactory in the main. W. T. Grant today reported July sales 8½ per cent over July, 1930. Kresge's July sales came to $10,721,800, only about $160,000 less than July of last year.

Governor Murray's forceful shutting down of all stripper wells in Oklahoma was reported as having a stimulating effect upon the Chicago wholesale gasoline market, and if the Texas legislature succeeds in providing adequate means to enforce proration in East Texas, the petroleum trade feels that a real turn for the better may be achieved.

Wholesale gasoline sold at Chicago at a maximum price of 3½ cents, against 3½ yesterday.

While Wall Street remained uninformed as what was actually behind yesterday's flop in sterling exchange, the erratic movements were generally regarded as representing only a misunderstanding somewhere, possibly between the Bank of England and the Bank of France.

WHEAT RISES AFTER DROP

Chicago, Aug. 6 (AP)—Prospects of at least a temporary halt in record-breaking downturns of wheat prices came today, after the September had sold here at 47⅝ cents a bushel. Rallies were accompanied by reports that, owing to extreme cheapness, wheat was being used for every possible purpose now, from flour to alcohol.

Cincinnati reported the purchase of 100 carloads of wheat by feed manufacturers, who bargained for 30 days shipment, but who were turned down on orders for double that amount, 20 to 30 days shipment.

September wheat eased again in the late trading and closed at 47⅞ to 48. Final figures for other futures were: December, 51⅝-¾; March, 54⅝; May, 56½-⅝. Corn closed at September, 50⅜-½; December, 40⅝; March, 42¼; May, 44⅜-½.

Borg-Warner Sales Demand Is Greater

Chicago, Aug. 6—Production has been stepped up in the last few weeks on the new type of vibration damper of the Borg & Beck Co., Chicago, division of Borg-Warner Corp., to meet additional sales demands made by manufacturers and replacement parts dealers. Several new contracts for this product have been made with leading automobile and truck manufacturers, who plan to use it immediately as standard equipment.

Replacement business from various parts of the country also has contributed somewhat to the cause for increasing its volume.

Truscon Steel Has $61,403 as Profit

Youngstown, O., Aug. 6 (AP)—Truscon Steel Company, one of the largest heavy steel fabricators in the country, today reported net profit of $61,403 for the second quarter, compared with net loss of $341,989 in the first quarter.

Second quarter gross income was $5,711,026 against $3,713,876 in the first quarter.

"We feel that there is a decided tendency toward revival of business, basing our opinion on the increased inquiries and volume coming to us," said W. C. Longer, vice-president, in the semi-annual report.

STEEL ORDERS CHANGE LITTLE

New York, Aug. 6 (AP)—Dow, Jones & Co. says present indications are there will be little change in either direction in unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel Corp., as of July 31, scheduled for publication at noon Monday.

"Reports of subsidiaries for the last few days of the month are still to come," Dow, Jones says, "and they may have a slight influence on the showing. If there was an increase in the average rate of buying in those days, it will permit a moderate gain in bookings, but this is by no means certain."

Shirt Company to Start Large Plant

Greenville, S. C., Aug. 6—Manufacture of shirts for Cluett Peabody & Co. of Troy, N. Y., will begin within 60 days. Machinery for this is now being installed, it was said, by the officials of the Ware Shoals Manufacturing Co., who will do the work. The plant, which is expected to be in operation on or shortly after Oct. 1, will have a weekly output of from 800 to 1000 dozen shirts.

Bank of England's Reserve Is Larger

London, Aug. 6 (AP)—Weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes in pounds: Total reserve, increased 10,628,000; circulation, increased 5,890,000; bullion, increased 1,513,000; other securities decreased 3,999,000; public deposits, increased 3,781,000; other deposits, increased 7,127,000; notes reserve, increased 10,592,000; Government securities, decreased 3,250,000.

Endicott Johnson Runs Near Capacity

New York, Aug. 6 (AP)—Endicott Johnson Corp., shoe manufacturer, is virtually on a capacity operating basis, having a sufficient volume of orders to maintain this rate for several months.

Rubber Is Easy

New York, Aug. 6—Rubber futures today were easy: Sept. 5.40; Dec. 5.60. New contracts—Sept. 5.41; Dec. 5.65; March 5.92.

GENERAL FOODS CORP.

T. M. Y., Cambridge—I would like to buy some General Foods around current levels. What do you think of the stock?

Ans.—General Foods Corp. has a leading position in field of packaged goods that has been reached, principally through acquisition of other going concerns, the company's original line of cereals having been augmented by absorption of Jello, Swansdown cake flour, Baker's chocolate, Log Cabin syrup, Maxwell House coffee, Hellman's mayonnaise, Diamond Crystal salt, Calumet baking powder, etc. Fourteen major concerns were acquired between December, 1925, and the latter part of 1929, financing having been accomplished largely by stock issuance.

Although computed normal growth of earning power is comparatively small, temporary cessation of wide merger activities has provided an opportunity for cost reduction and better co-ordination of sales and manufacturing branches.

Commercial development of frozen foods process has been furthered by recent manufacturing agreement with Standard Oil of California. Development of other products, notably Baker's chocolate bars, Post's whole bran, and a process for adding vitamin D to food products, has resulted from intensive research.

Advertising is used extensively to main consumer demand, and it is understood that 1931 expenditures will top those of the preceding year. Reports to the contrary, notwithstanding, Standard Statistics reports that company's relations with the Great Atlantic & Pacific chain are more satisfactory at present than ever before, and that the latter still is an important customer of General Foods.

First half earnings this year were officially stated to be about $1.90 a share, against $2.01 in 1930. Outlook for the balance of the year is favorable, with prospects that 1930 showing of $3.63 a share will be duplicated. Earned $3.89 in 1929, and $3.75 in 1928.

Dividends on common (only capital obligation outstanding) are currently maintained at $3 annually. Strong cash position was substantially bettered last year.

RAILWAY & LIGHT

G. F. G., Lynn—Have you a recent report on Railway & Light?

Ans.—The report of Railway & Light Securities Co. for six months ending June 30, 1931, compares with previous years as follows:

	Six mos. 1931	Six mos. 1930
Cash dividends	225,765	233,413
Total	376,197	439,407
Expenses and taxes	34,377	46,798
Int and amort. chgs.	138,097	138,619
Total	203,723	253,990
Profit on sales secured after federal tax	75,423	609,796
Balance	279,145	863,783

SALES OF AIR CRAFT GAIN

Wayne, Mich., Aug. 6—The Stinson Aircraft Corp. delivered $979,000 worth of planes in the first five months of 1931 or 20.2 per cent of all the commercial airplanes delivered in the United States in that period, W. A. Mara, vice president announced today.

Total dollar volume of planes produced by the approximately 60 commercial airplane manufacturers for the period was $4,897,725, according to official figures released by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce. The Stinson Co.'s total was slightly over one-fifth of this amount.

Stinson's volume of $979,000 is a 70 per cent increase for the company over the corresponding period last year. The $4,897,725 total for the commercial manufacturers this year compares with $9,050,726 for the corresponding period in 1930.

Prospect Favorable for Shoe Industry

The prospect for the shoe industry during the balance of the year states the United Business Service of Boston, continues favorable. The larger shoe producers are still working at capacity. Total output of shoes in 1931 may even surpass 1930 volume. The leather industry has been stimulated to some degree by the improvement in shoes, and tanners should show better earnings.

Natural Gas Net in Half Is $875,872

New York, Aug. 6—The Southern Natural Gas Corp. reports for half year to June 30 balance after expenses, ordinary taxes, etc., but before depreciation, interest and other charges, of $875,872. Interest requirements for six months totalled $535,095 on $17,836,500 first mortgage 6 per cent gold bonds outstanding.

"Narrow-Casting" for Gen. Electric

New system of transmitting sound by light pulsations that enable ships in harbor to carry on secret and direct communication with some other point is being tested by General Electric Co. System, called "narrow-casting," was tried out for the first time when music and voices were carried across the Hudson. It is unaffected by static.

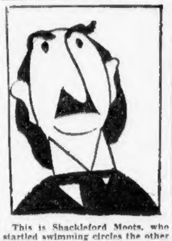
MAN OF THE HOUR



This is Shackleford Moots, who startled swimming circles the other day by climbing to the top of the 150-foot diving platform, taking a deep breath, flexing his muscles, standing on his hands, walking around the top of the railing, and then running out on the end of the diving board, jumping up and down three times, and DIVING INTO THE WATER BELOW. Out of the hundreds of stalwart men who have climbed to the top of the platform, Mr. Moots is the first one this season to actually dive. He may enter the next Olympic Games meet.

PORT PLAN GETS BIG BOOST BY MAYOR

the entire United States, with the Publix Corporation now in combination, should devote their time, their energy, their talents, their money and their power for influence for good to the promotion of the welfare of the port of Boston.

"It comes at a most opportune time. For a period of 25 years well-meaning men and women have given freely of their time and their money to restore the one-time commercial ascendancy of Boston. We have not received the measure of success we anticipated. It has been a long, wearisome fight, but at no time during the entire quarter century have we lost faith.

ALL FOR NEW ENGLAND.

"We have carried on since 1915, with the expenditure at the present time of upwards of $200,000, for changes in the law that would give New England a fair fighting chance with the rest of the United States in the commercial world. We realize that the future of New England is dependent upon the position New England occupies commercially, and when I say New England I mean the capital city of New England—the city of Boston. It occupied first placef or over a century and second place for more than half a century.

"Then by the creation of the Interstate Comerce Commission we gradually began to lose our position among the commercial ports of the United States. Very recently, within the last 30 days, the Cunard line advertised a three and a half day's sailing from European ports to the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

"The announcement was sufficient to fire the imagination of shipowners throughout the world. Inquiries were immediately begun as to what port would be the best competitive port for Canada, and there finally came an agreement that Boston is, with its advantage of a day and a half saving in a round trip.

BRANTON IS HONORED.

"The Boston Evening American through its creation of the Port of Boston Society, the Paramount-Publix Company, the representatives of the Paramount-Publix Company, Blundon Wills, the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and substantially every agency, have come forward to work for the future of the port of Boston."

Then the mayor presented Assistant General Manager Branton with a certificatt of membership to the society.

Port of Boston

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Mackerel dropped to the lowest price quoted by the wholesalers this season with the arrival of upwards of 250,000 pounds at the Fish Pier coming into an already glutted market.

Fifteen seiners came in laden with large catches. Fishermen found large schools off Provincetown, Minot's Light and even as far to the eastward as Monhegan and Seguin off the Maine coast.

Highliner for the day among the mackerel fishermen was the Alvan T. Fuller, named for the former governor, which receipted 70,000 pounds.

HOME AGAIN

West Indies vacationists from Boston will return home on the Lady Hawkins, of the Canadian National Steamships fleet, which is booked for in Boston today. Voyagers setting out for the West Indies will leave late today on the Lady Nelson, flagship of the same fleet.

CATCH DROPS

Light swordfish catches continued, as only one swordfisherman came into the Fish Pier, with only 27 fish. The schooner Restless was the solo swordfisherman. She made her catches off Brown's Bank. Seventy large swordfish are looked for today from Canada by rail. Two halibutters arrived in from the Banks with fair catches.

BALTIC SATURDAY

Bringing Bostonians home from European vacation trips and tours, the White Star Liner Baltic is due here Saturday morning, according to latest wireless advices received from the ship. She comes from Queenstown via Galway. She left Galway Saturday with 100 Bostonians aboard. She carries 239 bags of letters, 34 bags of parcel post, 1½ tons of cargo and 31 automobiles.

MACKINACK DISABLED

A United States Coast Guard "seventy-five footer" is taking the place of the Mackinack, U. S. Customs boarding tug, which is laid up at the Appraisers' Stores docks with engine trouble. It is believed that the Mackinack will be making the boarding trips in a short time.

DUE TODAY

Wireless reports received in Boston stated that the British steamer Gardenia, from Mariupol, via Istanbul coming here to John G. Hall & Son, will arrive today and the Zarambo from African ports will make a call at Norfolk. She will arrive here Aug. 10 or 11.

SHIPPING BULBS

Special contract rates on the shipment of bulbs to inland points of the United States have been reached in agreements made between the Black Diamond Steamship Corp. and the Bulb Growers' Association for several sailings from Rotterdam, Holland, to North Atlantic ports of the United States, it was announced by Rogers & Webb, Boston steamship agents. Bulbs will be shipped at 90 cents per 100 weight during September.

LUMBER LADEN

With 2,500,000 feet of lumber, the Canadian Winner, of the Canadian National Steamships freight fleet, is in here unloading. She carried her cargo from Vancouver and Barnet, British Columbia.

RHEUMATISM

Mrs. W. L. Lenox, 55 E. Concord St., Boston, says:—"I suffered from Rheumatism for over a year. There were pains in all my limbs so bad that I was often compelled to keep to my bed. The pains were particularly severe in my joints. I read of Dr. Walsh and the success he had in the treatment of chronic troubles, so I had him treat me. I had grown quite thin but under the influence of Dr. Walsh's treatment I have gained ten pounds in weight and feel fine. I permit the use of this testimonial in the hope that others who suffer as I did may know where to go for relief."

Walsh for War on Crime

Senator Endorses Mr. Hearst

Of Mr. Hearst's suggestion that the President organize a united war upon crime, corruption and banditry, Senator David I. Walsh said:—

> "It is the first time that the crime wave has been presented in such a vigorous manner as it has by Mr. Hearst in his editorial.
> "The federal government should proceed within its constitutional limitations to co-operate in every possible way to end the sway of the gangster and the racketeer which is threatening the safety and prestige of our people."

Senator Walsh is a thoughtful man, not given to exaggeration and overstatement, and when he says that the sway of the gangster and racketeer is threatening the safety and prestige of our people he means that it is threatening the very foundations of organized government.

If the security of the government were threatened by a foreign nation war would be declared in its defense.

But no attack is more subtle and, therefore, more dangerous than from the enemies within who sap the morale, the vitality and the honor of the country which gives them shelter and whose public officials, from presidents to judges, lack the consciousness or courage to declare war upon them.

The pity is there are not more officials like Senator Walsh who realize these evil dangers and are resolute and patriotic enough to strike out against them.

New England Must Fight

Increase in R. R. Freight Rates a Menace

New England's textile, boot and shoe and fisheries industries would be dealt a very damaging blow by the fifteen per cent railroad freight increase, according to the evidence presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission hearing at Portland, Me.

These are very vital industries, employing many thousands of men and women, and the success of which is utterly essential to the prosperity of all New England.

But why stop there?

Practically every industry in New England would suffer a crushing blow.

We are the longest railroad haul in the United States and have to pay accordingly. We draw our raw materials from the South and West. We ship our finished products to the South and West. Fifteen per cent coming, fifteen percent going; it is the equivalent of a thirty per cent increase.

Our own railroads have withstood the business depression more effectively than the railroads of any other section of the country, and our New England people should not be assessed to pay their financial reverses or delinquencies.

Swat New England seems to have become a slogan of official Washington and of the Southern statesmen jealous of our improved conditions and of our resurrection from the financial debacle which engulfed us ten and five years ago.

New England will be swatted plenty, she will be kicked around like the small boy in the schoolyard, unless she stands up and fights for her rights.

Nor should this fight, involving the finances of practically every industry in New England and every pay envelope in New England, be left solely to the manufacturers to wage.

We have State governments and we have Public Service Commissions, presumably created to protect the broad rights of all the people in these serious matters.

Let the States intervene and put up the battle for us with old New England spirit. Perhaps we can rely upon Governor Ely to show the way.

Infantile Paralysis

Early medical care is important.

Perhaps the most suggestive early sign is a stiffness of the spine and neck in a sick child. Ask your child to sit up in bed and bend the head forward between the knees.

The Harvard Infantile Paralysis Commission has tendered its diagnostic, therapeutic and after-care facilities to the public.

Open School Play Yards

As you walk through Boston you are impressed by the number of children playing in the streets, exposed to the frequent dangers of congested traffic.

And you are impressed by the number of school yards, closed and barred by heavy iron gates.

When we declare a moratorium upon our public property, we derive the least use and fewest benefits from it.

A Remarkable Discovery!

Oswald Garrison Villard says that many judges in New York and Boston do not believe in the Eighteenth Amendment and will not enforce it if they can find any excuse for evading it.

A remarkable discovery!

Next he will be surprising us with the information that the Fourth of July comes on the Fourth of July.

What Men Believe About Women

SILLY AS are the things which women believe about men, they aren't a patch on the things which men believe about women. In spite of all their playing and palavering together, males and females still regard each other with tongue-in-cheek and ace-up-sleeve.

Elsie Robinson

No man understands women, and frankly says so. Whereat women are greatly flattered. They needn't be. It's no compliment. The real reason why men do not understand women is not because they are boojum . . . but because they do not think they are worth understanding.

Any man could understand any woman if he judged her by the tests and standards which he would apply to any man of like caliber. For, fundamentally, there isn't a particle of difference between male intelligence and female intelligence. There has been a tremendous difference between male and female training and environment but, given an even break, the average woman can qualify with the average man. But it is abhorrent to male egotism to admit this. He will not acknowledge that the lady shares his brand of humanity. He insists that she's different. And he has devised a most clever sales talk to put the idea over.

"Women are smart," say men, "but they aren't smart the way men are smart. They don't really think things out—for the truth is they haven't regular brains to think with. But they have a queer, mysterious function in its place—they have intuition.

"Intuition doesn't really amount to much—but now and then it pulls some awful fast stuff," continues the complacent male, "and that's where a fellow gets fooled. He thinks a woman MUST be using her brains to pull stuff like that. But how can a woman use her brains when she hasn't any to use? Nope, you can't expect a woman to be intelligent like a man. But she sure is mysterious."

All of which, you might imagine, would make the Dear Little Woman see red. But not so. Only one sentence in this sales argument registers with her—namely, that she is "mysterious." And this tickles her so much that she's willing to let the Big Boy get by with murder if he'll just keep up the Feminine Mystery fantasy.

For, of course, it is only a fantasy. Women aren't a particle more mysterious than men. Their boasted "intuition" and "feminine instinct" are reasoning processes just as man's balanced judgment is a reasoning process. But woman, unhampered by thousands of years of conventional training, leaps at conclusions, whereas man lumbers along in approved ruts. But she blunders quite as often in her leaps as he does in his lumbering.

Feminine mystery—only a fantasy—but what a comfortable fantasy for both sexes. It allows the male to park the female in the back alley and go his way unhindered, with her own enthusiastic approval. And it allows the female to acquire a lot of fancy merit without working for it. Which, if you're that kind of woman, is certainly a jake arrangement.

This same trick technique is used in dealing with other feminine attributes. Traditionally women are purer, more honest, more sensitive, more timid and generally nicer than men. Not a word of it is true! Women are imbued with exactly the same moral and emotional qualities and face exactly the same temptations as men.' But how complimentary to the ladies if the gentlemen deny this . . . AND HOW DOGGONED CONVENIENT FOR THE GENTLEMEN!

In France

Paris Cafes Changed

PARIS, Aug. 6—Much prejudice against Paris by the tourist I believe is engendered by the local version of America's popular drink —lemonade. A lemonade in France, when ordered at a cafe, is a nauseous, gaggling mixture of medicated lemon juice, served lukewarm.

Unless forewarned, it often takes several trips to learn how to get the real American drink. Here, it is a "citron-press" and they bring you the ingredients to fashion it yourself—a halved lemon, bucket of ice, squeezer, sugar, shaker and a blue bottle of seltzer.

So the next time you plop down in a sidewalk chair just chirp "Garcon, une citron presse" and you'll thank me and perhaps send a naughty postcard. Of course, if you are not on the water wagon forget all about it. In all changing Paris, the most noticeable change is in the character of its cafes.

Nearly all the solemnly sedate old places have become garish and begilted sanctuaries. Wood panelings are supplanted by glittering mirrors and silvered trappings. Only the waiter in his long white apron and dinky black monkey coat remains as Aubrey Beardsley sketched him in the long age.

Someone has said half of Paris sits on cafe terraces while the other half saunters by in idle curiosity. And no picture of Paris is so accurate. The cafe is the most firmly grounded institution in France—the pivotal point where centers all discussion, sympathy and sentiment.

The cafe took its name from cafe —the French word for coffee. It was unknown until coffee was introduced in Europe from Persia. The first of record was established at Marseilles in 1671.

Camile Desmoulins launched the first cry of the birth of the Revolution from the Cafe de Foy. They are pleasant havens—these French cafes yet they have spawned a national indolence retarding the country. Par example, in four weeks their lure has thrown me three weeks behind in what my friends hilariously call work.

This morning in front of one of the Capucine cafes a blonde, blue eyed German newsboy in a milk white uniform appeared with his satchel of Berliner Tageblatts. It was interesting to note they sold like hot-cakes, an indication that Paris is again filled with her ancient foes. L'Echo de Paris continues to print Germany and her cities uncapitalized.

In the remnant of night life atop Montmartre a red headed colored girl from Harlem—Ada Smith—is a runner-up for the Parisian popularity bestowed upon Josephine Baker for so many years. Her establishment, known as "Bricktop's," is as crowded as Florence's was in other days.

For several years now I have not been over to watch the hired pallbearers who congregate on the narrow sidewalk back of the famed windowless church—the Madeleine. Today I dropped around. They are still there, their solid black costumes and derbies relieved only by their white celluloid collars and hook-on white ties. For six francs a funeral, they meander through Paris streets rain or shine behind dead to cemeteries. They are apparently affected by their gloomy calling, never talking but drooping in a mournful silence.

I had hoped to get out of France without running afoul of one of the complicated French hotel windows, but I met my Waterloo this evening. In trying to draw the heavy curtains my neck caught in one of the many ropes and I was turning blue when my wife heard my feeble gurgling awk.

Just Folks

Enough

Three happy meals of wholesome food are all a man can eat.

What matter costly counterpane and couches pillowed deep?
The best that any bed can give is eight sweet hours of sleep,
And he who rested wakes at dawn, although the room be plain,
Has had a happier night that those who looked for sleep in vain.

What matter costly cloth and braid or garments old or new?
And he who walks the world in health earth's beauty can behold
As fully as some richer man whose purse is lined with gold.

What if the book be leather bound or given a paper shell?
Who reads the common copy gets the tale it has to tell.
So sit me down to wholesome food and let my roof be stout

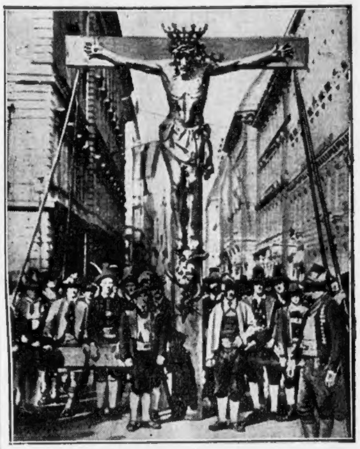
Imagination Important

It Must Be Stirred in Various Ways



GIGANTIC WONDER-WORKING CRUCIFIX CARRIED IN A RELIGIOUS PROCESSION

These two religious pictures, illustrating solemn religious celebrations in Hungary, interest and impress those that realize the importance of stirring up the imagination of human beings, usually sluggish mentally.

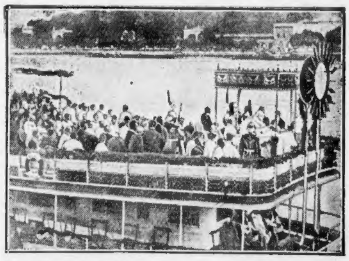
The lower picture shows a religious procession on a boat going down the Danube, celebrating the ninth centenary of St. Emery. Under the dais at the front of the boat sits Cardinal Sincero, carrying the Host, and from time to time imparting the Papal blessing to great crowds that knelt on both sides of the river.

The procession in which the great crucifix appeared was held in honor of St. Stephen, King of Hungary, and held in honor of the Holy Right.



RELIGIOUS PROCESSION ON THE DANUBE

Such processions as these, that have recently been forbidden with great severity in Mexico, in Spain, and in some places in Italy, give great satisfaction, religious inspiration and pleasure to masses of the population.

It is necessary to take human beings as they are, and to appeal to them in such a way as will best reach their imaginations.

The gigantic crucifix that you see, with its many striking features, added to its reputation for working wonders and miracles on its passage, will inspire deep reverence in the millions that see it.

The nails in the hands and feet are made very conspicuous. Above the mournful crown of thorns there appears a golden crown of power, showing that the period of suffering will end in glory.

Below, not usually seen on crucifixes, is a skull with a serpent twining about it.

To deprive Mexicans and Spaniards of these processions, since they desire them and feel that they are made better by them, seems to be useless severity.
